STAB TWO IN STRIKE RIOTING

Mob of 10,000 Surges Through Lawrence Streets, Battling Desperately with Police and Militia

LAWRENCE, March 7.—Two men were stabbed and sixteen arrests were made today in the worst strike riots in two weeks. It was necessary to call out the militia, so threatening was the attitude of the strikers.

Crowds estimated to contain 10,000 persons surged through the streets. Five automobiles, carrying police and militia, flew through the streets. Order was restored at last, but the demonstration proved to the city officials the spirit of the strikers is as far from being broken as ever.

Another important concession was made today by the Arlington mill, the first mill to offer operatives a minimum raise in pay of 5 per cent. The wool combers were not satisfied with what they were to get, and declined the offer. Today it was announced if they would return to work they would receive an advance of 11 per cent. Should the combers accept—and there was a general belief they would—it would mean an additional force of more than 1,000 at the Arlington mill.

Daniel O'Connell, an employe of the Arlington mills, was stabbed in a mixup with a crowd. Coco Miquale was arrested, charged with the stabbing. Two other men said to be connected with it got away. O'Connell's condition is not serious.

Policeman Stabbed.

Patrolman Tobin, who is stationed in the Franco-Belgian district, where there has been little or no trouble, was stabbed early today while engaged in dispersing a group of pickets on his beat.

Tobin, another officer, charged fifty or sixty pickets and found themselves surrounded. After a few minutes' work, they scattered the crowd. Then the other patrolman noticed a great slash in the back of Tobin's uniform coat.

"Why, man, you've been stabbed," he cried.

An examination revealed a cut three inches long that had gone through coat, cardigan and shirt, scratching the flesh on Tobin's back. His injury is not serious.

Scores of minor riots broke out all over the city, almost simultaneously, and for an hour the police were kept moving. Sixteen arrests were made up to 10 o'clock.

LONDON GETS CONFIRMATORY REPORT

BULLETIN.

LONDON, March 7.—The Daily Express publishes this afternoon a dispatch under a Wellington, New Zealand, date, quoting Captain Roald Amundsen with saying that Captain Scott, commander of the British Antarctic expedition, has discovered the South Pole.

POLE IS REACHED BY ENGLISHMAN

LONDON, March 7.—The South Pole has been discovered by an Englishman. This announcement was made this afternoon by the Daily Express in a special cablegram from Wellington, New Zealand. It quoted Captain Roald Amundsen, the Norwegian explorer, who has just arrived at Hobart, Tasmania, with saying positively that Captain Robert F. Scott, who headed an English expedition, had succeeded in the long quest for the pole.

Despite this announcement, no official word has been received from Captain Scott by the Royal Geographical Society or men interested in exploration, who were financial backers of Scott's dash. The return to civilization by Captain Amundsen before he was expected was theoretically explained by the fact that Captain Scott had beaten him in the race over the Antarctic ice fields.

It was pointed out that Amundsen went south with the intention of making a quick dash for the Pole, and that he had no big program of scientific work before him, as did the Scott party.

The editor of the Express said this afternoon that his correspondent at Wellington was a reliable and trusted man, and that he had the utmost confidence in his word.

The peculiar situation which has developed has recalled vividly the incidents attending the discovery of the North Pole. Some professed belief today that Captain Amundsen, emulating the behavior of Dr. Frederick Cook, raced back to civilization in order to beat Captain Scott with the announcement of the Pole's discovery, even though he had himself lost the honor of getting there first.

These persons concluded that just as Dr. Cook hurried south to tell the world that the North Pole had been discovered, although in that case he claimed the honor himself, so in the present instance the Norwegian dashed out of the Antarctic ice jungles to have the honor of making the announcement that the South Pole had been attained. Amundsen was not expected to reach the outposts of civilization for at least two weeks, and perhaps a month.

The rapidity with which the news of Amundsen's arrival followed the rumor about Captain Scott from London has immediately recalled to the public mind the way in which the North Pole announcement of Dr. Cook was followed by Commander Peary's declaration.

FIRST NEWS FROM EXPLORERS FOR YEAR.

This was the first direct word that Captain Amundsen has sent in over a year. In June, 1911, a letter was received which had been written in the preceding February, but at that time the expedition was still moving southward.

20TH CENTURY LIMITED WRECK

CLEVELAND, O., March 7.—One man was killed and more than eighteen passengers were injured today when the second section of the Twentieth Century Limited, the eighteenhour train between New York and Chicago, which left New York at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, was wrecked at Nottingham, ten miles east of here. Many wealthy persons were among the injured.

All the passengers except one, George Hall of Woonsocket, R. I., escaped with cuts and bruises. Hall's left arm was crushed. The man who lost his life was Peter Marr, a switch tender. One of five coaches which were derailed struck a shanty in which Marr was asleep, and he was killed.

Among the injured are W. H. Leonard, Denver, back wrenched; George H. Gilmore, Claremont, N. H., bruised; G. F. Farmer, Brookline, Mass., cut by glass; Charles F. Bishop, Chicago, bruised and suffering from shock; Henry N. Sweet, Boston, right arm hurt; L. F. Washburn, Dorchester, Mass., spring; John C. Sweet of Hornblower & Weeks were in one car of the train. The car containing the party was overturned. The only one of the party injured was Mr. Sweet, whose arm was jammed, but his injury was not serious.

Hornblower & Weeks have received a message from H. N. Sweet of that firm stating that he is not seriously injured.

WOMAN BITTEN BY POLAR BEAR

Mrs. Madeline Mack, a dancer, suffered severe lacerations of the hand and arm, and two stage hands were badly scratched and had their clothes well-nigh torn off, in a scuffle with a polar bear at the Scenic Temple, Malden.

The audience was frightened by the bear's roars, which came muffled from behind the curtain, but was quieted by the ushers.

The actress was leaving the stage after her act and passed the bear. She ventured to pat its head. Instantly it seized her hand in its mouth and held on. Two stage hands with clubs attempted to beat the animal off, and were scratched by blows of its paws. Finally the trainer, Herr Alber, appeared, and regained control of the beast.

Troy Investor Begins Action Against the Former Boston Financial Agent.

PLYMOUTH, March 7.—Suit for the recovery of $10,000 was filed today in the courts of this county against Cardenio F. King, the former Boston financial agent, now at the Bridgewater State Hospital, where he was taken from the Charlestown prison, by William D. Hardy of Troy, who claims King defrauded him in a stock transaction.

Hardy said that as a result of King's advertising he sent him $10,000 on August 20, 1907. He says King was to have bought American Tobacco and other stock with the money.

WOMAN SLAYER IS HELD

Lynn Police Chief Says He Is Certain Mrs. Chapman Is Not Mad and Will Push Charge of Murder

Chief Thomas Burckes of the Lynn police said this afternoon that Mrs. Jessie M. Chapman of that city, who was held without bail earlier in the day on a charge of murder in shooting Mrs. Eva F. Ingalls, her friend and neighbor for years, is sane in his opinion and that he shall try to get her convicted of murder in the first degree.

Before court Mrs. Chapman said to Chief Burkes: "I don't see how I had the nerve to do it. I surprised myself."

Melvin O. Chadwell, a special patrolman and neighbor of Mrs. Chapman, says that, after the shooting Mrs. Chapman said to him: "I did it one the impulse of the moment."

Frank Burrill, former Lynn patrolman, whose stole revolver was used in the shooting, believes Mrs. Chapman was at least temporarily insane.

Thinks Prisoner Sane.

Chief Burckes had an hour's talk today with Burrill. The chief said afterward:

"I shall prosecute Mrs. Chapman and shall try to get a conviction for murder in the first degree.

"I am of the opinion that the prisoner is sane and that the cause of this murder is jealousy over Mrs. Ingalls and a mistaken thought that Mrs. Ingalls was on too friendly terms with Mr. Burrill.

"Mrs. Ingalls was the higher type of womanhood. I know absolutely there was nothing wrong with her and that the relationship between Burrill and Mrs. Ingalls was far from close.

"Mr. Burrill admits to me that he saw Mrs. Chapman in Boston yesterday afternoon. I asked him if they were together. He said they were not, but he admitted, however, that both he and Mrs. Chapman had been out of town at various times together.

Tells of Woman's Threats.

"Burrill explained about the revolver. He said that last year he would come home and leave his revolver and handcuffs in a lower drawer. Mrs. Chapman would come over and call on Mr. and Mrs. Burrill. Burrill said he had often seen Mrs. Chapman pick up the revolver, flourish it around and say she would like to have one just like it. Burrill says that seven months ago, two months before he retired from the police force, he got this revolver and paid $14 for a new one. He says he never suspected Mrs. Chapman of taking it.

"Burrill believes that Mrs. Chapman shot Mrs. Ingalls in a moment of insanity."

Melvin O. Chadwell, a special patrolman of the Lynn police department, who lives at No. 55 Fair Oaks avenue, heard last year a violent argument between Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. Ingalls. Chapman says:

"Last Summer Mrs. Chapman had a camp on Fair Oaks avenue, near my place. That was before the Chapmans moved into their new bungalow on the avenue.

"Last May I was piling lumber in my yard. I heard women's voices talking loudly. I saw Mrs. Ingalls and Mrs. Chapman arguing in front of the Chapman camp. Mrs. Chapman was accusing Mrs. Ingalls of 'stealing her' and Mrs. Ingalls was denying it. I heard Mrs. Chapman say:

"'You've ruined me. How dare you ask me to take that bonnet from you. I don't want anything to do with you. You have disgraced me. If you don't keep away from me I'll shoot you.'

"Then Mrs. Ingalls, who had been denying these accusations, turned around and walked away as her own house. I went over to Mrs. Chapman and remarked: 'Pretty strong language that.'

She replied: 'I know it. But I did it on the impulse of the moment.'

After Mrs. Ingalls was shot Mrs. Chapman went into the Eaton house at the corner of Fair Oaks avenue and Lyndfield street. There she waited for the police to come for her. Chadwell, being in the neighborhood, was at the house before the patrol wagon came. He said to Mrs. Chapman: 'How did this come about?'

Chadwell says that Mrs. Chapman lifted her veil and said in reply: "I shot on the impulse of the moment."

Hearing on March 16.

Mrs. Chapman was held for a further hearing March 16 by Judge Lummus in the Lynn District Court. This afternoon she was taken to Essex County Jail at Salem and there awaited her next hearing.

Mrs. Chapman was arraigned before a crowded courtroom, in which the woman, who is considered a leader in Lynn society circles, could not discern a single friendly face. Her husband and her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Chapman, did not come into the room, but remained outside in the corridor during the arraignment, and rejoined her afterward in the detention room of the jail.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Chapman faced the eyes of the people who crowded the courtroom without a sign of disturbance. She was not pale and did not appear alarmed or shaken in any way. Once when she did not understand the proceedings she leaned over and questioned a deputy who stood beside her. Aside from that instance, she spoke no word in the courtroom.

The only statement made by Mrs. Chapman was what she said to Chief Burckes before she went into court. Then she said:

"I Don't See How I Had the Nerve."

"I didn't see how I had the nerve to do it. I surprised myself."

Mrs. Chapman was not required to plead. Her attorney, former District Attorney W. Scott Peters, was engaged in the civil courts at Lawrence, and telephoned that he would be unable to appear. He asked that a plea of not guilty be entered.

Mrs. Chapman was brought into the courtroom by the matron, Mrs. Frazier. She walked quietly to her place at the bar. Clerk J. A. Dougherty read the charge, that she had "murdered Mrs. Eva F. Ingalls by shooting her with a loaded revolver." He then said that the case was continued.

At this point Mrs. Chapman spoke to Deputy Chief David Burtlett at her side. "I don't understand," she said.

The deputy chief explained to her the nature of the proceedings, and a moment later she was taken back to the detention room.

In the custody of officer Martin Silver, she was taken to the jail later in the auto ambulance.

"It's Awful," She Tells Husband.

As Mrs. Chapman left the courtroom she was joined by her husband.

"You know all about this, Oliver," she said, appealingly, to him "You know the circumstances. It's awful——"

As she finished they passed into the detention room.

Mrs. Chapman's statement, "I don't see how I had the nerve to do it. I surprised myself," was made when Chief Thomas Burckes visited her in the detention room where she sat with only the matron, Mrs. Cordelia Frazier, for company. Chief Burckes' mission was to tell her that she would be arraigned and charged with murder in the first degree.

He entered the reception room to find Mrs. Chapman sitting quietly, brooding, and occasionally wiping her eyes with her handkerchief. The woman turned toward him as he entered, but did not rise.

"Mrs. Chapman," he said, "I want to tell you that in a short time you will be arraigned on a very serious charge—that of murder in the first degree. Under the circumstances, it is my duty to warn you that anything you may say will be used against you in evidence."

The woman looked curiously at the chief. He seemed to be waiting for her to speak, and she answered softly:

"I don't see how I had the nerve to do it. I surprised myself. I haven't anything at all to say about it."

Chief Burckes then explained to Mrs. Chapman that she had the right to be represented by council at the hearing. She referred him to W. Scott Peters, a former District Attorney of Essex county, who has been retained by her husband for the woman's defence.

Mrs. Chapman spent the night in the detention room in the women's section. The matron who has charge of the section and attended to her wants said today:

"Mrs. Chapman is a surprisingly calm prisoner. She seems a forceful character, and is quite cool under the circumstances. She will not talk of her act, of course, but talks freely on other subjects, and I feel quite sure she will face the ordeal of the arraignment in court and what comes after without breaking down.

She passed a comfortable night, and although the breakfast we served did not appeal to her, I am sure she is all right, so far as health goes."

Mrs. Chapman is forty-six, the wife of Oliver S. Chapman, a real estate operator, of No. 30 Fair Oaks avenue. Her victim, Mrs. Ingalls, lived at No. 25 Fair Oaks avenue. They were neighbors and supposedly friends.

Was Belle of Lynn.

Mr. Chapman called at the station house at 7:30 a. m. and talked with his wife.

Twenty years ago Mrs. Chapman was one of the belles of Lynn, and one of the handsomest women of that city. She still retains much of her beauty.

There is no denial of the shooting. Nevertheless mystery surrounds many points of the affair. The police would like to know for instance:

What Mrs. Chapman meant or accusing the other woman of "ruining her life."

Where Mrs. Chapman got the revolver with which she did the shooting, since it is a heavy police weapon issued to Patrolman Frank Burrell of Lynn and which disappeared almost a year ago.

Whether Mrs. Chapman is insane or whether her attack of hysteria at the police station was a sham.

And whether if it is true that for months Mrs. Chapman has been a source of terror to the neighborhood because, as several of her women neighbors allege, she threatened their lives.

Mrs. Chapman's husband explains the deed of his wife on the theory of insanity. By the police it is thought possible that the act was one of revenge for alleged gossip which Mrs. Ingalls is said to have spread about the woman who shot her.

Chapman denies that any ill-feeling had existed between himself and his wife. As far as he knew, he declared, Mrs. Ingalls and his wife also had been on neighborly terms.

"I'll Settle Her Finally."

Last Fourth of July occurred the clash which set the neighborhood agog. After that Mrs. Ingalls kept out of Mrs. Chapman's way.

The police believe that Mrs. Chapman carried the revolver in her handbag for months. She had no reason to believe she would see Mrs. Ingalls last night, but when she did see her, the gun was where she could put her hand on it and use it.

For months Mrs. Chapman's actions have been of such a character as to lead neighbors to conclude that she was a dangerous woman, and several women on Fair Oaks avenue confessed that they have been afraid of her for some time.

When it became known recently that Mrs. Chapman had threatened to shoot a retired Lynn policeman with whom she had been very friendly for seven years, the neighbors became more firmly convinced that she was insane and that she would do harm to some one.

That Mrs. Ingalls has been in fear of Mrs. Chapman was evidenced by the last words which she spoke to her husband. As she was leaving her home, she said, "What will I do if I should meet that woman on the road?" Mrs. Ingalls had for years been devoted to her son, Jesse, who is totally blind. Her other children are Mrs. Edward E. Pinkham of Lexington street and Mrs. Don M. Ingraham of Peabody.

The murder was a dramatic one, the tragedy being enacted as it was, on the open street. An investigation disclosed Mrs. Chapman's motive(?). She started to walk along Lynnfield street toward Fair Oaks avenue. She carried the big revolver which had either been found in Mrs. Chapman or had been stolen.

At what is known as Hacker's drive way, a road leading from a hill back of Fair Oaks avenue to Lynnfield street, Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. Ingalls met. The latter had left her home to walk to the terminus of the street car line, and was purely accidental that she met Mrs. Chapman.

MRS. CHAPMAN, WHO SHOT HER NEIGHBOR, AND THE SLAIN WOMAN

Mrs. Chapman caught her by the arm and peering up into her face through the falling snow, asked:

"Are you Mrs. Ingalls?"

"Why, yes," was the response.

"You have ruined my life," was the calm protestation of Mrs. Chapman.

Then, before the other woman had an inkling of what was to happen, Mrs. Chapman steered her landing, and pulling out a revolver, fired one shot. It took effect in Mrs. Ingalls' breast, and toppling over, she fell in the snow.

Boys See Shots Fired.

The shot attracted the attention of two boys, Raymond Teague of Lynnfield and Frank Burnett of Peabody, who were talking together some distance down the street. Turning quickly, they saw Mrs. Chapman lean over the form on the sidewalk and calmly fire the remaining chambers of the gun at the body.

The boys started toward the woman. At the same time, windows in houses were thrown up, doors opened, and a score of people, wildly excited, shouted back and forth to one another. Before any one could reach the body of the murdered woman, Mrs. Chapman had disappeared.

One neighbor, other than the others, hurried to a nearby telephone and called the police. An ambulance was rushed to the scene with Policemen Curry, Clark and Flanagan.

Curry's first act was to rush across the street to Mrs. Chapman's home at No. 30 Fair Oak avenue, directly opposite the home of her victim. She was not there, but her husband, Oliver Chapman, a shoe worker and real estate man, who had been apprised of what had happened, said to Curry:

Arrest Slayer.

"You'll find her at the house of Mrs. Kate Eaton, No. 261 Lynnfield street."

There Curry found Mrs. Chapman sitting in the parlor. She seemed quite calm and appeared to be waiting for the police. Her manner, she says, was pathetic when she looked at him and said:

"I want the authorities to take me."

The two officers, detailed to the case, carried to the corner in the auto ambulance. There they found the body of Mrs. Ingalls on the sidewalk, her head in the gutter.

The body was placed in the ambulance, and a passerby, O. W. Hoosting, was pressed into service to escort it to the Lynn Hospital, while the officers searched for Mrs. Chapman.

The shooting was witnessed by three boys who were driving past the corner in a wagon. One of them, Raymond Teague, declared that the two women met when he was very close to them.

"The first I knew," he said, "was when one of them started shooting. The other woman yelled, then dropped. While she was falling the other kept on shooting, and after she was down she fired still another shot.

"Then I saw the woman put the gun into her bag and go into Mrs. Eaton's house at the corner."

Victim Fifty-six Years Old.

Mrs. Ingalls was the wife of Charles N. P. Ingalls, a water inspector of the city of Lynn. She was about fifty-six years old, and had four children, Mrs. Edward E. Pinkham, Charles E. Ingalls, Jesse A. Ingalls, a blind man of Lynn, and Mrs. Ella F. Ingraham of Peabody.

Mrs. Chapman, who is about forty-six years of age, has no children. Chapman makes a specialty of buying houses and improving them and then reselling at a profit. In addition he has a regular real estate business of considerable extent. He came to Lynn several years ago with Mrs. Chapman from Haverhill, according to neighbors.

Mrs. Ingalls' body was taken to Hazen's undertaking rooms and an autopsy performed by Joseph E. Pinkham, medical examiner.

He found that death was instantaneous. The first shot fired entered the left breast, penetrated through the third rib, passed through the heart, and then, deflecting upward, lodged near the shoulder blade in the neck. Another bullet lodged in the kidney, while the other two just grazed the flesh.

WARNS SOCIETY AGAINST LENOX

C. W. de Lyon Nicholls Continues Advice to the "Ultra-Fashionables."

Back Bay families who are not in C. W. DeLyon Nicholls' list of twenty-eight ultra-fashionables of Boston are told in the third instalment of Mr. Nicholls' new book today how to break into London society as a preparation to becoming "ultra-fashionable" on this side of the water.

Mr. Nicholls' book is entitled: "The 405 Ultra-Fashionables of America." One infers from the title that the author limits the really smart people of the United States to 405. He concludes twenty-eight ultra-fashionables, in Boston, as published in the AMERICAN Tuesday.

What Mr. Nicholls has to say about Lenox is especially interesting to Boston society people because of the large number who have Summer homes in the Berkshires and in the neighborhood of Lenox. These include Rosamond Dixie, Holoise Meyer, the Insigl family, including Miss Nora Insigl.

The AMERICAN is offering the advance sheets of Mr. Nicholls' book to its readers. The title of the opening chapter is "How to Become Ultra-Fashionable."

The third installment today explains the London situation. The author deals with the question of the social promoter, leasing a country house, making up house and week-end parties and how to treat fellow-Americans one meets abroad.

Later the author, changing his social aspirant back to this country, writes of Lenox. Of this Berkshire resort he says:

"Give a wide berth to Lenox, for it is a mincing, conservative and summer provincial colony, more or less dominated by Boston ideas, and to most of whose members, although two-thirds of them live on estates, the genial summer climate is as repellant as to the townsfolk of a strenuous, Puritan New England village."

The third installment of Mr. Nicholls' book follows:

Must Have Promoter.

It is assumed that you have secured from the start for the London campaign the services of a high-class social promoter; such a personage, by judicious management, can be corralled from the ranks of the nobility, numbers of these bearers of titles among the women being sub rosa in some form of commission business. An English lady has not the same delicacy that an American society woman needing money has, for rendering social service for a financial consideration. Arrange with your social promoter to have a dinner given in your name at your hotel, in honor of as eminent peeress, with carters laid for no other Americans besides yourselves, and see that the event is given the widest exploiting it will warrant on both sides of the Atlantic.

In London society then, it is the smart court circle for which you are supposed to be aiming. A court presentation, within itself almost indispensable, cannot give one open sesame into this charmed circle. After your English visiting list warrants it, you may elect to lease a country house, say, on the Thames. The barrister who draws up the agreement, the inventory taker, the butler, the footman, the coachman, the grooms, the stablemen, housemaids, parlor maids, the butcher—everyone fastens on you like a cyraide of Neapolitan lazzaroni, to make an extra kill, and the plucking of the American golden goose makes the laughter long and loud in the servants' hall.

"Go to Paris to Buy Clothes."

Go to Paris every year to buy clothes; frequent occasionally some of the celebrated spas on the Continent frequented by royalty, stopping invariably at hotels; lease houses only in London or in fashionable country house localities of England. If during your European sojourns you fall in with fashionable Americans, try by delicate and becoming advances to fraternize yourself with them, leaving it entirely to them to take the initiative of keeping up the acquaintance on American soil. Sedulously avoid even the semblance of future building upon them, or banking upon the name.

In your conversations with American ultra-fashionables, although the major part of their talk among themselves is about people, be wary of indulging in personalities yourself and keep to objective themes—the opera, the plays, the modes, anything and "hold yourself well in hand, never showing the slightest eagerness, if great amnesia society chance to drop from ultra-fashionable tips. Never deign to ask for introductions to those better placed socially.

Let your Writers are to be passed in New York, where the real battle for social acceptancy has to be fought out—Newport will come much later—strictly avoid sending out cards for general reception days for the season, or for a series of any length of informal afternoons at home with music, for undesirable persons and social mountebanks are sure to take undue advantage of such loopholes. Be at home on Sunday afternoons to serve tea at 5 o'clock from Horse Show time and the opening of the opera in November, until your Spring exodus to Paris to buy clothes gin route for the London season.

No Cards for Sunday Afternoons.

Issue no cards for Sunday afternoons, having it given out that those of your friends whom you really desire to have come are bidden by verbal invitation and that you receive only a few. Give no latitude to the bringing of extra guests without your explicit consent; in this respect be as arbitrary as if you were a classic Corinthian pillar of society. There are so many people whom it is a pleasure and an honor to receive, who have one or two acquaintances of practically no social standing, but bound to them by some tie of self-interest, who will beg and importune these to be brought to the house of a wealthy social aspirant for self-seeking ends really not at all complimentary to the hostess.

Should it during your period of social probation be your good fortune—and your wealth will not as a lure—to receive an invitation to the church for a wedding in a really fashionable family, for which invitations have been sent out by the thousands, make a costly and artistic wedding present. For example, give a pair of handsome candelabra. Few wedding gifts, aside from checks, which can be given only by relatives or exceedingly old friends of a family, are more acceptable than candlesticks, which are always in fashion and can be disposed in such a variety of places and in cosy nooks about a house.

More than likely your munificent wedding gift will receive mention in the newspapers through the kind offices of society reporters whom your husband has treated to champagne galore, and one of two of whom have perhaps already shown their gallantry by inserting your name in their columns among lists of guests at smart entertainments, at which you were neither present in the body nor honored with an invitation. At all events, the general public, which is hot-headed and more very conventional society matrons of high degree, who could not conceive of such a rise, upon reading of your somewhat extravagant wedding gift will jump at the conclusion that you were, of course, bidden to the reception. Furthermore, from then to time, much coveted bits of pastehoord for other church weddings are more than likely to follow suit. This clever little stratagem was resorted to at Newport by a family of long-suffering social probationers from Providence, who were invited to the church for the Oelrichs-Morris wedding, a few years ago, and to this day is giving good bonns in social per cents.

"Know Your People."

The classic Greek aphorism, "Know thyself," must in your case as often be reversed. The first precept on the list is, "Know your people," must alike be your mental and social watchword. Many a social probationer possessed of the wealth of Ormus or of Ind seems to be devoid of a conception of the meaning of what is termed "family," or gentle birth, and the advantages accruing from such a high estate, granting that the composition of the structure of fashionable society is relatively two-thirds made up of wealth.

It is assumed then that you have all along been a close student of fashionable society and have perceived that there are only two sets in society with which a really ambitious person can afford to have anything to do—the smart set and its outward fringe and the old colonial and Knickerbocker families.

I speak advisedly of the latter, for should one finally not succeed in penetrating into the true ultra-fashionable circle, the defeat can be partially cloaked by falling back upon the Knickerbockers. And their names of every student of the upward climb up society's toilsome hill will pose well in the newspapers along with those whom you perchance may be able to muster for your dinners and musicales. In general, whenever you receive a social thaat from an ultra-fashionable, fly into the arms of a Knickerbocker.

Miss Nora Insigi, one of Boston's prominent society young women, who is active in affairs in the Lenox colony.

GIRL SUES SON OF NOTED SINGER

Another cloud threatens to darken the home life of Madame Schumann-Heink and her sons, the children for whom the diva has arranged to separate from her husband, William Rapp. The family that has been considered the standing and irrefutable argument to prove that an operatic career and a home, in the truest sense of the latter word, can go together, finds itself shaken by trouble.

Dispatches from Trenton, N. J., tell how Johanna Alice Forner of Dresden, Germany, has filed a suit for breach of promise against Hans Schumann-Heink, one of the elder of the opera singer's children, and asks damages of $25,000. Hans was married not long ago to another young woman.

The romance on which Miss Forner bases her suit began in Dresden early in 1909 when, according to Miss Forner, Hans proposed to her. She accepted. During the months that followed she alleges that she made disbursements in the expectation of being married, and now asks redress, not so much perhaps for the loss of Hans, as for the money actually paid out.

Clerk in Jewelry Store.

Although Hans' residence last known is Staten, N. J., where his mother has a beautiful country home, he was last heard of in Chicago, where, it is said, he was employed as a clerk in a jewelry store.

Mme. Schumann-Heink has stated that she has almost half a million dollars in the bank. Perhaps now she will come to her son's rescue, in his embarrassments. For a clerk's salary can scarcely be expected to support a family, and at the same time pay heavy damages.

Hans Schumann-Heink was his mother's favorite son. His secret marriage, which the diva declared was as much of a surprise to her as to Mr. Rapp, was an immediate cause of the separation from her husband.

Mr. Rapp's indignation at the children was unbounded.

"They are a lot of molly-coddles," he said once. "If they would only stand on their own blind legs—paddle their own canoes—dig their own toes in and get to work, they might amount to something."

Resented Husband's Attitude.

The prima donna resented Mr. Rapp's attitude toward her children.

"When it came to a choice between them, for whom I have given my whole life, and Mr. Rapp, to whom I was married only six years ago, there could be no doubt of my choice," she said.

Nevertheless, Mr. Rapp's influence had certain weight with the prima donna, and the result was that three of the great contralto's sons were pitched in and sent Hans, against whom the suit is filed by the little German girl, attended the Institute of Technology in Boston for a time, and worked in a factory here. Again he was an errand boy in a New York department store at $4 a week.

The children greeted the news of the estrangement with delight. "Now," said one, "we can go back to our art studios, to our singing and painting. The whole trouble between mother and Mr. Rapp was that her love for us came in conflict with his love for the great American dollar."

Caruso's "Bucket of Blood" Got Lost

Real Tragedy in "Girl of Golden West"

ENRICO CARUSO DRAWS HIS PICTURE AS JOHNSON, THE OPERA BANDIT

The famous tenor can dash off clever caricatures, as well as sing opera roles. Here is the way he thinks he looks in "The Girl of the Golden West." Below he has drawn his impression of the American's musical critic.

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

"My, blood, my blood! Where is my blood?"

Caruso, who sang Johnson in "The Girl of the Golden West" Tuesday night, couldn't find his blood, and the performance was jeopardized for a few minutes.

Nobody in the audience noticed that the famous tenor, while staggering around claiming he was shot, didn't bleed a little bit. He related the incident himself with gusto at breakfast this morning at the Hotel Somerset.

Caruso's sketch of Frederick Johns.

Caruso was eating prunes. Think of that, ye boarding house dwellers who kick against the faithful prune. Caruso, who gets $2,000 every time he sings, was breakfasting contentedly upon stewed prunes.

"Good morning," said Caruso. "Did you like the performance?

"Very much."

"Ah, I am glad. You know I lost much blood."

"Impossible."

"Let me tell you. In the second act Minnie drives Johnson, the bandit, out into the storm. He gets a few feet from the door when he is shot by the sheriff's posse. I rushed out of the door and looked for my bucket of blood to rub on my hand and hands, but it wasn't there.

"I yelled for it and the stage hands and property men ran around looking for it, but they couldn't find it. The orchestra gave me my cue. Minnie opened the door and I staggered into the room wounded, but unable to bleed.

"I held my hands to my breast pretending to be wounded inside the vest, and that made Minnie want to laugh. Then I climbed the ladder into the loft of her cabin, and there, crouching in the loft, was the man with the bucket of blood.

"When I came down I was bleeding all right."

"Garcon, l'addition," he called finally, and when the bill had been paid he prepared to depart for New York by the noon train.

SUFFRAGETTE THOUGHT MAD

LONDON, March 7.—Brooding over the violence of English suffragettes is believed to have unbalanced the mind of Mrs. Eleanor Jacobs, wife of W. W. Jacobs, writer of humorous sea tales. Mrs. Jacobs was arraigned in West End Police Court today charged with breaking four windows in Earlsourt in a suffragette raid. In reply to the magistrate's question as to why she had taken part in the destruction of property Mrs. Jacobs said:

"I've done this because I thought it was my duty, being the mother of five children."

The magistrate replied that such an answer was absurd and remanded the prisoner for eight days, in which time Mrs. Jacobs' sanity will be tested.

This Girl Recovered from Consumption

The makers of Eckman's Alterative, which is doing so much good for Consumptives, are continually in receipt of really wonderful reports of cures brought about solely through the use of this medicine. These reports are always at the command of anyone interested, and many of the writers in their gratitude have suggested that like sufferers write direct and learn what it did for them. Here is one specimen:

21 Second Ave., Aurora, Ill.

"Gentlemen: Pardon me for not writing sooner, but I wanted to see if I would stay cured. I can now truthfully say I am perfectly well. Never felt better in all my life. I wish to add my heart-felt thanks. I never have any pain, no cough, no night sweats, no hot flashes. Since a child of two years I have been ailing with lung trouble, which grew worse as I grew older. At the age of fourteen the doctor said if I could not be sent I would surely die of consumption. Every Winter I would be sure to have either bronchitis, pleurisy or I would be in the Pulmonia one time. I had catarrh of the stomach and bowels and had to quit school for two years; but have not anything of the kind this year. I will send letters of my friends at

WOMEN PLEAD FOR MRS. CUSUMANO, IN SHADOW OF DEATH CHAIR

MRS. FLORENCE SPOONER

By ELEANOR GARRISON

I am only too glad to go on record that I am absolutely opposed to the execution of Mrs. Cusumano. Not only this, but I am opposed to the execution of anyone.

I do not know of a reason beyond the chivalry due to her sex why Mrs. Cusumano should be favored above any other murderer, but I do believe that no man is good enough, and there is no assemblage of men good enough, to exact the life of another in punishment for crime.

By MRS. FLORENCE T. SPOONER.

Do I believe that Mrs. Cusumano should be saved because she is a woman?

My answer is yes and no. I believe she should be saved, not because she is a woman and so entitled to extra privileges under the law, but because she is a woman and so has the right to appeal to the instincts of chivalry and tenderness toward motherhood and toward woman generally which were planted deep in the breast of every man from childhood.

MISS ELEANOR GARRISON

By MARGARET L. FOLEY

Mrs. Cusumano is a mother of three children. She is to be pitied. Her cup of sorrow is today filled to the brim. The punishment inflicted upon her already is, indeed, sufficient. The ends of justice have, in my opinion, been substantially satisfied. To take her life would not greatly enhance the interests of the State. If the question of putting her to death were put before the people of the State there would be an overwhelming vote against such a course.

The argument may be advanced that Mrs. Cusumano was a fiend. There may have been extenuating circumstances affecting her case. That is merely supposition on my part, but I maintain that she could not have been in her right mind when the terrible deed was committed.

I am in no way defending her act. Rather do I abhor it. But I argue from the point of a humanitarian, feeling that it is not right for the State to take the life of anybody, much less a woman.

MARCEAU PHOT.
MISS MARGARET FOLEY

MISS ELEANOR GARRISON DECLARES EXECUTION WOULD BE DISGRACE TO STATE.

Miss Eleanor Garrison, granddaughter of William Lloyd Garrison, the abolitionist, added her voice today to those of the women of Massachusetts who are fighting to save Mrs. Lena Cusumano from the electric chair.

Miss Margaret L. Foley, the aggressive agitator for woman suffrage, is striving to save Mrs. Cusumano.

It will be a disgrace to Massachusetts if Lena Cusumano is executed, says Miss Foley.

Mrs. Florence T. Spooner, president of the Society for the Abolition of the Death Penalty, has called on Massachusetts women to rise at this time, when one of their own sex is in the shadow of the chair, and demand abolition of executions.

The society of which Mrs. Spooner is the head is indorsed by men of such influence as Governor Foss, Rt. Rev. Bishop Lawrence, ex-Governor John D. Long, ex-Governor John Q. A. Brackett, Rev. William Harmon van Allen and Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham.

Mrs. Cusumano is in Plymouth jail. She will be brought to Charlestown soon, to be electrocuted on June 2, unless she is spared.

Miss Eleanor Garrison, granddaughter of the man who risked his life for freedom, says:

By ELEANOR GARRISON.

I am only too glad to go on record that I am absolutely opposed to the execution of Mrs. Cusumano. Not only this, but I am opposed to the execution of any one.

I do not know of a reason beyond the chivalry due to her sex why Mrs. Cusumano should be favored above any other murderer, but I do believe that no man is good enough, and there is no assemblage of men good enough, to exact the life of another in punishment for crime.

Here is the statement given out by Miss Margaret L. Foley of the Equal Suffrage League:

By MARGARET FOLEY.

In this age of enlightenment it would be barbaric cruelty for our legislators to allow a woman to be electrocuted. A special act of the Great and General Court ought to be passed to abate such a proceeding. I do hope such a course will be pursued.

I am unalterably opposed to the death penalty being imposed on either sex, and it is a crying shame that there is such a law on our statute books. The sooner that law is stricken from among those of this State the better it will be for the perpetuity of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

The women of this Commonwealth have never been backward in taking the initiative in promulgating theories and having them enacted into laws that have for their purpose the advancement of everything good and noble. They will not be found wanting in the effort that is to be made to save the life of Mrs. Lena Cusumano, under sentence of death for killing her husband.

I am glad to see the deep interest manifested by the people of the State in inaugurating a movement to save Mrs. Cusumano from the death chair.

Quotes Foss as Opposed.

Governor Foss is on record against the killing of a woman in this State in the electric chair. He says that to kill a woman in Massachusetts by the machinery of law is revolting, and is repugnant to civilized thought. He further says he would be awfully sorry to see a woman electrocuted in Massachusetts, and hopes that he may never know of such a horror.

The people of this Commonwealth invested Governor Foss with the dignity and responsibility of a high office. They knew how he stood on capital punishment cases when they voted for him. He was but voicing the sentiment of the great masses of the people when he came out the way he did, and is entitled to deep consideration by the members of his council.

The members of the latter body should not stand in his way as a stumbling block and interfere with his humane purposes when he advocates the repeal of a law—a death-dealing law if you please—that will place the old Bay State in the rank of progressiveness of thought and advanced civilization.

There is no complaint to be found with the jury who found Mrs. Cusumano guilty. Neither is there bitterness shown toward the judge for imposing the death sentence. That was the duty of both branches of the law as reflected by both judge and jury. They could not do otherwise.

Brimming Cup of Woe.

Mrs. Cusumano is a mother of three children. She is to be pitied. Her cup of sorrow is today filled to the brim. The punishment inflicted upon her already is, indeed, sufficient. The ends of justice have, in my opinion, been substantially satisfied. To take her life would not greatly enhance the interests of the State. If the question of putting her to death were put before the people of the State there would be an overwhelming vote against such a course.

The argument may be advanced that Mrs. Cusumano was a fiend. There may have been extenuating circumstances affecting her case. That is merely supposition on my part, but I maintain that she could not have been in her right mind when the terrible deed was committed.

I am in no way defending her act. Rather do I abhor it. But I argue from the point of a humanitarian, feeling that it is not right for the State to take the life of anybody, much less a woman.

The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Try as you will after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or a loose or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting all over the scalp.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and prove to yourself tonight—now—that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it, if you will just try a little Danderine. Real surprise awaits you.

The World's Greatest Tonic Medicine

And Most Useful Household Remedy

Starting as a doctor's prescription twenty-odd years ago, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are now on general sale in every civilized country in the world and their cures encircle the globe.

The prescription was used by the doctor in his private practice and was found to have such a wide field of usefulness that the remedy was given to the world by being placed on sale with complete directions for use written by the doctor himself. Those directions have now been translated into every written language, but the familiar registered trademark is prominent on every package, so that purchasers may be certain they are buying the genuine, whether they buy in the city pharmacy, the corner drug store, the country store or their equivalents in foreign lands.

Great merit in the remedy is alone able to produce such a wonderful demand. Without it advertising could never accomplish this result. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood, strengthen the nerves and give energy and vitality to weak, exhausted, discouraged men and women. Their virtues are constantly spread abroad by those whom they have cured.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a tonic—not an ordinary tonic, but one that has made many almost miraculous cures in obstinate diseases. They give just the aid required to bring back health and strength to the nervous and exhausted. They are useful in any disease caused by thin or impure blood, and the list of such diseases is astonishingly large.

Anaemia literally means "lack of blood" and is a condition in which the blood is thin and watery. Chlorosis, or green sickness, is a form of anaemia most common in growing girls. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a specific for these troubles.

After an attack of the grip, or of acute fevers, malaria, scarlet or typhoid, the blood is thin and impure. Sometimes the after-effects are worse than the disease, and years of ill-health have followed a single attack of the grip. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood; the restored blood burns up the poisons and normal health follows. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the tonic to use during convalescence.

In no disease does the blood show a more rapid altering and thinning than in rheumatism. No permanent cure is possible until the blood is restored. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood and enable it to cast out the rheumatic poisons with the natural secretions of the body.

Without a supply of well-oxidized blood good digestion is impossible. When the blood is thin and poor the food remains undigested in the stomach and ferments. Gas forms and the acids of fermentation cause heartburn. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enable the blood to absorb oxygen, it becomes rich and red and the stomach trouble disappears.

The nerves receive all their nourishment through the blood. Thin, weak blood is quickly followed by starved nerves or neuralgia, or by nervous exhaustion, which is called "neurasthenia." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured so many people with exhausted nervous systems, people who had "overdrawn" their fund of nervous energy, that there can be no question of their efficacy in such cases.

Some forms of paralysis are caused by thin blood and are cured when the blood is built up. The record of such cures by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is astounding enough to cause any sufferer to give the remedy serious consideration.

The progress of locomotor ataxia is stopped in many cases when the blood is made rich and red and immediately the work of repair, or reedification of the nerves, begins. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have had almost miraculous success in the treatment of this disease and we have guarded against doubters and unbelievers by having some very remarkable endorsements accompanied by sworn affidavits and by the testimony of disinterested witnesses.

General Debility.

The cure of Mrs. A. H. Birney, of No. 96 Davis street, Greenfield, Mass., shows the value of the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says:

"For over six months following an operation I remained in a weak and run-down condition. I was tired out all of the time and had no strength or ambition. I had weak spells when I was hardly able to get around. I became very thin and had no color.

"During this time I was at my home but became no better. My husband finally advised me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I began to feel better after I had used four or five boxes, but kept right on, for I believe in giving a medicine a good trial. In a few weeks I was in good health again. I gained in strength and weight and could sleep well. Since using the pills I have given them to my three children and they are all in good health."

Had Dizzy Spells

Mrs. Mattie Foster, of No. 155 Spring street, Auburn, Me., says:

"I was in a general run-down condition from hard work, was nervous and had dizzy spells, especially when I stooped over. I had no desire for food, as it distressed me, causing gas and making me feel bloated. Also after eating I had a suffocating feeling and was so sore about my stomach that I could not bear to touch it. My heart fluttered and was worse when I went up stairs. Following the palpitation there were sharp pains about my head and arms and I would feel sleepy after these pains. My feet and ankles would often swell to such an extent that some mornings I was unable to put on my shoes. From my hip down my right leg had a numb feeling. It pained when I walked, and if I favored it for any length of time, it would become stiff and hurt me to move it. It was partly insensible to feeling. I had fainting, sinking spells and could get relief only when I had fresh air. I was restless and could not sleep at night.

"I was treated for a long time by two doctors. They said that I was run down and that a great deal of my sickness was due to weakness common to women of my age. Their medicine did not relieve me and I grew worse. A friend recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to me and I gave them a trial. Although I had been sick for two years, I began to sleep better after taking about two boxes of the pills. I kept up the treatment until I was restored to health. I am able to work hard now and highly recommend the pills to all sufferers."

Anaemia—Bloodlessness.

Mrs. William Clark, of No. 12 North Common Terrace, Lynn, Mass., urges every sufferer form anaemia to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Her great faith in them is based upon her own experience. She says:

"Two years ago," she says, "I was so sick with anaemia that I could not walk up stairs. No one can know how I suffered. I was very pale and had severe headaches with dizzy spells. I was short of breath, my stomach was very weak, food didn't agree with me and I had but little appetite. I became discouraged with my doctor's treatment, as he did not help me at all. Finally I decided that I would take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills instead. I began to feel better by the time I had taken a few boxes and was soon able to eat heartily. I gained in strength until my health was restored."

After-Effects of the Grip.

An attack of the grip left John Luce, whose address is Box 56, R. F. D. No. 2, North Anson, Me., in a deplorable physical condition, and he found no relief until he took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They cured him.

"I was all run down," he says, "after a siege with the grip. My appetite left me, my stomach was weak, I was constipated, my kidneys were affected, my head ached and I felt all gone.

"A druggist recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills after I had tried several different medicines without getting any relief, and the first box helped me. I took a few boxes altogether and they restored me to perfect health.

"My mother was also cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She was run down in health and strength, was nervous, could not sleep, and was so weak she could not go up stairs without assistance. Her weight fell from 140 pounds to 98. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured her."

Rheumatism.

Mr. Isaac Walker, of No. 88 East River street, Hyde Park, Mass., had suffered from childhood with rheumatism, it became so severe that he was obliged to give up work for a time. He then gave Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial and was cured. He says:

"I had always suffered with rheumatism in my back and limbs and would be worse whenever the weather was damp and wet. As I grew older the disease became more firmly seated. I think it was hereditary, as my father was a great sufferer from it.

"I had severe dull pains in my back and shooting pains in my arms and legs. My flesh was very sore, especially in the region of the spine. At times I could hardly walk across the room, for the pains were agonizing, and I would be nearly doubled up. During the hardest attacks I had to quit work and go to bed and couldn't get up or down without help.

"I doctored with specialists in Boston but they helped me for a time only. After spending many dollars with the doctors, I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had not taken the pills long before I was relieved of the severe pains. I was able to get around and continued to use the pills until entirely well."

Another Cure.

Mr. B. A. Jarvis, of No. 26 Chase street, Pawtucket, R. I., was cured of a severe case of rheumatism by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He says:

"I had rheumatism for eighteen years. The fingers of my right hand were drawn out of shape and my wrist was so sore that the slightest pressure caused me intense pain. There were stinging sensations in my hands when I got up in the morning.

"My brother recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to me, as he had been benefited by them. After I had used them a short time I found that I was getting better and I soon became strong and able to work. I can strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for rheumatism. They have been of such benefit to me that I would not be without them."

Stomach Trouble.

Mrs. Solomon Morgan, of Millinocket, Me., tells of her cure, as follows: "A few years ago I was in a run-down condition from over work. My stomach was weak and food did not agree with me. My heart fluttered and at times there would be a choking sensation in my throat. I suffered severely from backache and could hardly straighten up in the morning. I had frequent headaches through the temples, my feet were swollen and pained me, and a week seldom passed that did not find me unable to do my work. The doctor said that I needed rest, and he also gave me tonics, but I did not seem to get any better. Finally I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and could see a change for the better after using them only a short time. A few boxes completely cured me and I have been well ever since. My son has also taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for a general run-down condition, and was so greatly benefited that he has had no occasion to take any medicine since."

St. Vitus' Dance.

Mrs. Benson C. Lowe, whose address is R. F. D., West Paris, Me., says, regarding her cure of St. Vitus' dance by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills:

"I was a very delicate child and when I was ten years of age I became afflicted with St. Vitus' dance. I was confined to bed for three or four months. My left side was paralyzed and I had no use of my arm or leg. I was helpless. My speech was affected so that I could not speak plainly, and I was completely tired out by the twitching of my muscles. Visitors calling on me would unduly excite me. I had palpitation of the heart and dizzy spells.

"For a little over a year I was under a doctor's care. He pronounced my case St. Vitus' dance, but did not help me. A friend advised my mother to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after a short trial I began to improve. The benefit I received was remarkable. I was restored to health and have had no nervous trouble since. I feel that I cannot say enough for this great medicine."

Nervous Debility.

Mrs. Josephine Petrilly, of No. 54 Cross street, East Somerville, Mass., says:

"From overwork I became run down and for about two years suffered with nervous debility. I had but little appetite and suffered terribly with indigestion. Gas formed on my stomach and caused me intense pain. I had severe dizzy spells and at times felt despondent. My blood was impure, I could not get a good night's rest and had no ambition for anything. I was completely worn out and was so discouraged that I thought I would never get well. I was often confined to bed for days.

"The doctor said I was suffering from nervous deoility, caused by impure blood, but I got no benefit from his treatment. I had heard so much about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that I began their use. I felt relieved after a trial of them, and although my case was a stubborn one, I continued to get better until cured."

PREVARICATION NOW BY GRAND TRUNK ENEMIES

In the desperate campaign against the Grand Trunk at the State House they are beginning to resort to prevarication. The campaign of simple assault is several days old.

The apparent effort of Senator John H. Schoonmaker, of Ware, to make it appear that the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange had revoked from its former petition in favor of the coming of the Grand Trunk, and is now in favor of bringing in the Canadian Pacific DO NOT THE GRAND TRUNK, is the talk of Boston business circles today and the subject of unlimited guying at the State House.

The directors of the Fruit and Produce Exchange have lost no time in going after Schoonmaker. The Senator from Ware holds the responsible chairmanship of the Railroad Committee. His committee will report some sort of a Grand Trunk bill to the Legislature. What sort was today more than ever a subject of conjecture.

Illuminating Incident.

The Sunday AMERICAN told of the suspicion abroad that the Railroad Committee has been against the new railroad from the beginning, in the light that suspicion the Fruit and Produce Incident is, to say the least, illuminating.

At the State House the committee bulletin said for a recess "Hearing on the Grand Trunk bill" at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Once again the AMERICAN feels justified in warning the great commercial and industrial interests of Boston to have their representatives attend all these Grand Trunk hearings.

What happened in the matter of the Fruit and Produce Exchange may happen again.

Acting Mayor John J. Attridge had come to the State House as a citizen to say that Boston needs all the railroads the city can get, and that, in addition, the Railroad Committee should make easy the way of the Grand Trunk. Mr. Attridge made the best Thursday evening at the Fruit and Produce Exchange banquet in his discussion, he said, he spoke in favor of the Grand Trunk bill and was delighted to find his audience enthusiastically with him.

Produce Exchange Stand.

Then followed this amazing colloquy:

Senate Chairman Schoonmaker—Did you know that they had framed a set of resolutions and sent them in to this committee on the second day of March, 1912, THE ADMISSION OF THE CANADIAN PACIFIC AND NOT THE GRAND TRUNK?

Acting Mayor Attridge—No, I did not, but I say I was present there, and from their applause and actions I think they favor the coming in of either railroads.

Mr. Schoonmaker—But you did not know that on March 2 they framed a set of resolutions in favor of the coming of the Canadian Pacific and ordered them sent to the Railroad Committee?

Mr. Attridge—No, I did not, on the same night I said I thought possibly it would be a good thing if any other road, probably the Canadian Pacific should come into Boston, and they seemed to agree to that.

Senator Schoonmaker's apparent effort to send forth the impression that the Fruit and Produce Exchange is against the coming of the Grand Trunk, and contradicted by the Exchange before yesterday's hearing came to an end, was unsuccessful, however, made no effort to straighten the matter out before press of business.

Warmly Favors Grand Trunk.

As it fortunately happened, Secretary Alton E. Briggs of the Exchange was in the State House. On the letter head of the Exchange, the secretary immediately repeated its pro-Grand Trunk declaration of January 24 and added this unequivocal statement:

The Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange has not receded from the position outlined in the above resolve and is still heartily in favor of the entrance of the Grand Trunk Railroad into Boston; and further, it has presented its position before the Railroad Committee at the State House and is prepared, either in writing or through its agents, to defend its position and advocate the entrance of the Grand Trunk into Boston.

President Alfred P. Lee of the Fruit and Produce Exchange, the chamber of which numbers nearly 800, asked the Boston AMERICAN today to say in print plainly and as loudly as possible that the Fruit and Produce Exchange is enthusiastically and solidly in favor of getting the Grand Trunk for Boston.

"We cannot tell the Railroad Committee at the State House how to do it," said President Lee, "but the legislature will make a grave mistake who listens to those who say the business interests of Boston do not want the Grand Trunk. Other trunk lines, too? The Canadian Pacific? We should gladly welcome all of them. They would help Boston and help New England. But the one that's asking to come is the Grand Trunk, and the Fruit and Produce Exchange, through its board of directors, says 'let it come.'"

Watching Developments.

President Lee refused absolutely to be quoted at this time about the remark of Senator Schoonmaker.

"We mean, down here," he said, "to keep a sharp eye on developments, but at this time I have neither criticism nor comment to make."

It was expected today at the State House that the late afternoon hearing scheduled for the Grand Trunk would be D. O. Ives, traffic expert of the Canadian road. Former Representative Norman H. White may be a witness.

Mr. White has not been asked in by the Grand Trunk people, on his own account, having fought and lost the battle to stop the merger of the Boston & Maine and the New Haven, and to make the New Haven loosen its grip on the railroad lines of Western Massachusetts, Mr. White is said to find out how recently has been the change of heart at the State House towards railroads.

Southern New England.

President Flanagan has dispatched yesterday to say, at least a dozen times, that the Southern New England Railroad is the Grand Trunk in New England.

Representative Cavanaugh of Agawam—You said that practically the entire stock of the Southern New England is owned by the Grand Trunk. How much of it is not?

President Flanagan—I have no idea of its quality the local directors.

Mr. Cavanaugh—Would the Grand Trunk, as the legal owner of the Southern New England, be willing to go to Ottawa to get an agreement with the Commonwealth of Massachusetts?

Mr. Flanagan—I should have to know the conditions of the proposition before I could answer that question. The Grand Trunk and the Southern New England Grand Trunk are well established. Both are responsible companies.

Mr. Cavanaugh—If the conditions imposed were acceptable to the Southern New England would the Grand Trunk accept them? Will the Grand Trunk guarantee any outlay?

Chairman Schoonmaker—Counsel for the Southern New England will please advise this that there would have to be some changes made in the charter before the Grand Trunk be willing to agree to such changes as are recommended?

Mr. Flanagan—I think we should have to know what it proposed.

Mr. Flanagan—I should like to know first what it is. It might not be necessary to consult it in anybody.

Mr. Cavanaugh—But assuming that some sort of bill is passed, would your corporation be willing to submit it to the Grand Trunk?

POLICE CALL FOR MILITIA'S HELP IN NEW LAWRENCE OUTBREAK

Sixteen Persons Arrested in a Fierce Clash with the Authorities.

way to work at 6.30. On Jackson street extension two men accosted him.

"You can't go to work today," they said, peremptorily.

The man started to argue, and without another word the two seized him. He fought and in the struggle that lasted for over five minutes he received a stab wound, deep and painful, but not dangerous, on his shoulder.

The sixteen arrests made early today were on charges of intimidation, disorderly conduct, or similar offenses. Judge Mahoney has stated that hereafter he will impose the maximum penalty on anyone interfering with an employe on his way to work.

The police, a hundredet them, were almost swamped by the mob that massed in Essex street. They drew their clubs, and forced their way into the front ranks. Many women in the crowd were shoved to one side out of the way, and then the patrolmen charged on the strikers, using their clubs freely, while the strikers fought back with kicks and with their fists.

Attack on Officer Charged.

Salvatore Bruno was placed on trial today on the charge he tried to kill Policemen Richard Murphy and Daniel McLeod in the riot on February 26, when between fifteen and twenty shots were fired. Prepx Iubino, arrested for the same alleged offense, was discharged for lack of evidence. Witnesses testified they saw Bruno shoot.

Five of the strikers, three men and two women, arrested early today, were fined today from $ 1to $5 each.

Disorder and rioting continued in Lawrence. Several desperate fights between individuals resulted in arrests, while in one case, a brick was thrown through an electric car window. The car was bowling along Essex street when, half way between Union and Garden streets, a crash was heard and the window at the end crossed in the car was shattered by a piece of brick, which dropped into the car. A woman occupied the seat, but the brick struck at the corner of the window farthest from her.

Fire Commissioner Cole had a thrilling experience in rescuing Assistant Marshal John E. Sheehan of Lawrence from a crowd of angry women strikers, who had pounced upon him and had him at their mercy when the fire commissioner happened to pass in an automobile with a couple of other officers of the First Corps of Cadets, who are doing strike duty there.

Shepherd Denounces Mayor.

Walter Shepherd, the settlement worker who has established a soup kitchen for children, made a stinging attack upon Mayor Scanlon. Mr. Shepherd declared:

"I defy Mayor Scanlon or any other official of the City of Lawrence to prove that the city is taking care of its poor. The conditions in this city are bad, and the officials know this to be the fact. I can gather in three hours a dozen settlement workers of Boston, Worcester and Fitchburg to testify to this fact. Professor Brooks of Harvard, who has been here, told me that the conditions are appalling."

Forty-one children of the Lawrence strikers who were placed aboard a T.H train today bound for Boston, from where they were to be taken to New York and Philadelphia, rode as far as South Lawrence and were put off the train because the committee in charge of them had no money with which to pay their fares.

The children were in the care of Attorney Klotz, Frank Roesch, Mrs. Hennan Fielding and Miss Anna Sachs.

When the conductor started to collect fares one of the men in charge of the children told the conductor that he did not have any money. He said that he would give the conductor an order on the treasurer of the Industrial Workers of the World.

The conductor decides to play safe. He put all of the party off at South Lawrence and then rushed up the railroad authorities in Boston.

The railroad officials informed the conductor that they would not accept any orders—that they were doing business for cash.

When the driving rain the children were taken from the train and into the station at South Lawrence to await further action on the part of the Industrial Workers of the World.

The children were sent back to North Lawrence, where their transportation arrangements were approved, and they were placed in a special car on a later train and brought to Boston. They arrived at the North station at 9 o'clock, and were taken to the South Station and later in the day left for New York.

They excited great interest at the North and South stations and crowds gathered around and watched them as they ate the breakfast provided for them.

The police authorities made no efforts to frustrate the plans of the committee in sending the children away, as the had been notified that only those children whose parents had consented to their going would be taken. This makes the fourth group of little ones who have been sent away, two to New York and one to Washington.

Lawrence Maroni, who was one of the committee appearing before the Congressional Committee, returned from Washington last night. He said that the children who were sent to Washington related the stories of the strike to the investigating committee, would leave the Capital today, but would not return to Lawrence. They will stop off at New York, where they will remain until the strike has been settled.

WHO IS HUNGRY?

This picture, taken by an American photographer, shows how the little children of the mill strikers are fed on sandwiches and soup by private charity at the Lawrence relief station. The children cheer as they approach the entrance where the food is passed out.

LAWRENCE POLICE AGAIN DEFENDED AT WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, March 7.—With city officials of Lawrence, Mass., continuing their defense of police and brutal methods in dealing with the striking textile workers, the House Rules Committee resumed today its inquiry into conditions in the Massachusetts city. Daniel Murphy, city solicitor, put in evidence a telegram he received from Samuel C. Logan, assistant city marshal, for the purpose of showing that the strikers' children sent to New York two weeks ago were well well treated.

The telegram read:

"Allen Benjamin, cartoon, and Peter Bakker, cheese, who, sought to bring on Hell Week in New York, are with a dozen more, which make 100 in all, in the dress. They did not like the way they were treated and ran away. Picked up and a letter carrier and turned over to the police and put in the House of Detention, Twenty-third street and Tenth avenue, New York. Kept there with three women and other Italian children, and brought back to Lawrence February 27."

Following the filing of the telegram Representative Wilson of Pennsylvania presented to the committee a petition from officers in Lawrence asking as follows:

"We, two thousand residents of Lawrence, at meeting assembled, respectfully petition congress to abandon fully and impartially not only into the industrial causes of the existing strike in Lawrence, but also into the practices of all unions, including and transportation companies doing interstate business in the manufacture of cotton goods, together with the effect of such practices upon the public."

The petition was transmitted to "E. M. Quinn of No. 84 Jones street, Lawrence."

Rev. Clark Carter, city missionary of Lawrence, then took the stand and told of his feel regarding the efforts of the various charitable organizations of that city to aid the strikers and their children.

"During the strike have any cases of serious destitution come to your notice?" asked Representative Hartwick.

"That depends on the viewpoint," said the Minister. "I have been so familiar with people who have to get along on small pay, and who have just enough to pay for rent and coal that my answer might be different from that of some one else."

Mr. Carter said many of the Lawrence children fancied the idea of going to New York or some other city to be taken care of, thinking it would be a diversion.

"A friend of mine," she said, "heard one little girl say to another: 'If you want to go to New York, you must wear your best dress. If your dress ain't torn, tear it, or they won't send you.'"

WOMEN CONDEMN HOLDING UP OF STRIKE CHILDREN

By MISS ELIZABETH MARBURY,

Member of the Colony Club New York, and friend of Miss Anna Marcon, she was present at the hearings.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The terrible occurrences at Lawrence, if they be true, attest that woman is once more the Atlas of humanity and it is a blot on civilization that in this enlightened age such outrages are possible.

While I deplore the extremity into which the strikers have been plunged, yet I cannot but feel that if they had been guided by the American Federation of Labor instead of the Industrial Workers they would have been better off. The American Federation of Labor is a conservative force in the labor field.

The striker catches it both ways, from the State militia and the Industrial Workers of the World, and, of course, the women and children are the chief sufferers. Most certainly it was a high-handed, illegal and un-American proceeding to prevent the children of the strikers leaving the State.

By MRS. MARTIN W. LITTLETON,

Wife of the Representative from New York, who for three days has listened to the horrors of the Lawrence strike.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—I know nothing about the power of our great government nor about how much is left with the State of Massachusetts. In fact, I am talking from the convictions of the heart rather than from the conclusions of the head. But of this I am sure—that the future strength, purity and patriotism of our country depends upon how we treat the children of our race, and some one, somewhere, somehow should, in fact, must, find a way to take these frail and unformed little minds and bodies away from the mills and factories and teach them to grow up strong, useful and self-reliant.

I do not wish my sentiment to get the better of my sense. But I know it is not only good sentiment but good sense to save these boys and girls who must be the men and women of tomorrow. I believe in conservation not so much of forests and minerals and waterpower, but of the children. Everything in use cries against the whole ghastly thing.

"TIZ Reminds Me of My Barefoot Days!"

"My Feet Never Get Sore, Tired or Chafed Now, Because I Use TIZ."

"TIZ makes me feel like a boy again. Nothing would hurt my feet in those days, even when I'd run around barefooted with Rover, over rocks and pebbles and sticks.

"To be able now to have feet that never ache, never get tired, blistered, swollen or chafed, or have corns, callouses or bunions, is a glorious experience for all the older ones, and makes one reflect in the winter of life. TIZ makes the feet feel young, and young feet make you feel young all over.

"I've tried many things for my poor old tired feet, for these bunions of 20 years, and for those corns that have added wrinkles to my face. I've tried plasters, powders and salves—and nothing has ever given the relief that TIZ has. My feet are now strong and vigorous, they never get tired or swollen. I have no corns, callouses or bunions any more—they are boy's feet on an old man's!"

TIZ gives instant relief and cures all foot troubles. It operates on a new principle, draws out all the poisonous exudations that cause foot miseries.

Don't accept a substitute. An elderly man especially has a mind of his own; for that you get TIZ.

TIZ, 25 cents a box, sold everywhere, or sent direct, on receipt of price, by Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill. Recommended by all Drug Stores, department and general stores.

New Methods f Treating Consumption

After a number of years of successfully fighting Consumption in the various countries of Europe, there has been brought to the United States a preparation which bids fair to take the lead in the war on the Great White Plague.

This preparation, which is called "Sirolin," does away with the necessity of the patient seeking a dry climate, and obtains just as remarkable results in the dampest localities.

There is scarcely a prominent physician in Europe who is not prescribing Sirolin with remarkable results, and the medical profession in our own country have also taken it up.

You can learn more about Sirolin by addressing The Sirolin Company, 223 West Broadway, New York City.

All leading druggists are recommending and distributing Sirolin with considerable success.

THE EDISON ELECTRIC ILLUMINATING CO. of Boston, in accordance with the recommendation of the Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners, hereby announces that a reduction in the retail price for electricity, from 11 cents per kilowatt hour to 10 cents per kilowatt hour, is in effect from March 1, 1912.

American Investigators Now in Lawrence Looking Into Conditions.

The committee of Boston men who are to investigate living conditions in Lawrence at the request of the AMERICAN left for the textile city now in the throes of a bitter mill strike at 8.55 a. m.

The committee will make a thorough investigation of various phases of the strike, with special attention to the poverty of the families of the strikers. The members of the committee are as follows:

Lorin F. Deland, chairman, business expert; Francis M. Carroll, lawyer and president of the Boston Rotary Club; William E. Butler, merchant and president of the William S. Butler Company; Rev. Dr. William H. Van Allen, pastor of the Church of the Advent, and the Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst of New York.

Before the train pulled out Dr. Van Allen of the Church of the Advent said:

"We will approach this investigation of things in Lawrence thoroughly unbiased and as sincere men. We have the hope that our labors will result in ameliorating conditions there."

The committee has engaged rooms at the Hotel Needham for its Lawrence stay.

Dr. Parkhurst on Hand.

The Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, the noted New York clergyman and sociologist, had already arrived in Lawrence from New York. Dr. Parkhurst will later write for the AMERICAN a series of articles on what he finds in that city.

When Dr. Parkhurst was asked today if he cared to discuss what he had found in Lawrence he said:

"I am simply unable to draw definite conclusions on what I have seen in so short a time. What I have seen has been intensely interesting.

"I attended a meeting of the strike committee and it was one of the most remarkable meetings I ever saw. It was well worth the trip from New York just to look into the faces of the people and feel the unity which prevails among a dozen or more nationalities."

The strike committee, which is under the direction of the Industrial Workers of the World, showed Dr. Parkhurst every consideration, explaining their system of bookkeeping and offering their books for inspection.

Much surprise was expressed by Dr. Parkhurst when he learned that the Industrial Workers of the World had received something like $40,000 in contributions since the strike began two months ago. They have a surplus on hand at this time of about $8,000. This money, Dr. Parkhurst was told, came from all sections of the country.

At the meeting of the strike committee, at which many of the strikers were gathered, Dr. Parkhurst had an opportunity while listening to their speeches to get an idea of the grievances of the operatives and of their methods of conducting the strike.

Talks with the Mayor.

The distinguished clergyman had a talk with Mayor Scanlon, and the Mayor explained his position on the controversy, saying that women had not been treated brutally and that Lawrence was able to take care of her own poor people. The Mayor thought that an erroneous idea had been obtained throughout the country as to how law and order is being preserved and as to the indifference of the city to the suffering of the families of the strikers.

The Washington Mills were visited by Dr. Parkhurst, and Moses L. Shuttleworth, agent of the mills, and Mr. Marvin, secretary of the Wool Manufacturers' Association, discussed the strike. They showed the visitor a copy of their concessions to the strikers, which was posted on the wall, and then a copy of the demands of the strikers, giving it as their opinion that the demands were exorbitant.

Dr. Parkhurst wanted to see Mrs. Bertha Cerosse of No. 151 Elm street, who was injured very seriously by the rough treatment of the police, she says. The woman's story was told in last Sunday's AMERICAN. She repeated it to Dr. Parkhurst. Her husband is not a striker, and she never worked in the mills, she said. She is still very ill, but it is expected that she will recover.

Clergyman Up at 5 A. M.

At the relief station of the American Federation of Labor, Mrs. Sara Conboy explained the plan of helping the needy families. She gave Dr. Parkhurst the names of several families where there are numerous children that have to live on very small wages received by the father. The clergyman will call on some of these families.

At the relief station of Walter Shepherd, Dr. Parkhurst saw between 200 and 400 hungry children fed. He remarked that they certainly were hungry and he said that Mr. Shepherd was engaged in a good work.

Dr. Parkhurst was up and dressed shortly after 5 a. m. today and witnessed the stirring scenes attending the opening of the mills, the clashes between pickets, operatives who are at work and the police.

WOOD AND STRIKE COMMITTEE MEET AT STATE HOUSE

Another effort was made today at the State House to settle the Lawrence strike at a conference attended by a strike committee, President William M. Wood of the American Woolen Company and the members of the legislative Committee on Conciliation.

This was the first time the three elements had got together at one time.

The meeting was held in room 249. The committee from Lawrence reached the State House at 10:30. This is the same committee that met the legislative committee before and that called on President Wood. It consists of Joseph Bedard, Etter Giannini, Archibald Adamson, Mrs. Annie Welzenbeck, Gilbert G. Smith, J. B. Bienkowski, Thomas F. Riley, William Born and Thomas Holliday.

The legislative committee is composed of Senators Coolidge, McLane and Hunt and Representatives Ellis, Bellamy, Ridout, Meaney and Fisher.

The meeting was held behind closed doors. It became known, however, that the legislative committee was determined to effect some kind of a settlement of the strike, and that they were prepared to go to considerable length to accomplish it.

One of the statements that have been made along this line several times of late is that unless something more was done than has been done to settle the strike that the troops would be withdrawn from Lawrence on Monday.

Salmet was so chilled he had to be helped from his machine. He quickly revived after partaking of hot drinks and being wrapped in blankets. Salmet reached French air at Dieppe, having crossed the English channel from East Bourne in a southeasterly direction.

Word of Salmet's coming had been flashed before him and crowds flocked into the Issy aerodrome.

MISSES' SPRING SUITS

Misses' Nobby Suits — Scotch mixture, attractive Norfolk coat, Gibson pleat back and front, finished with half belt; lined with guaranteed peau de cygne, high girdle skirt, panel back and front with inverted pleats.

$25.00

The average Young American Miss is not led or accompanied to a store and simply clothed. No one knows this better than the writer.

The Miss of to-day has decided personal ideas and individual preferences on all matters of Dress. They are sensitive to style changes. Every girl with ruby, red blood desires to be properly and tastefully and smartly SUITED.

You go look at the Spring Suits exploited elsewhere at "half prices." Use your fingers and eyes. They are mean make-believes. The dealer who sells them injures all honest merchants as well as the purchaser. They may be worth the money asked for them—but not a cent more. We keep clear of all such un-questionable methods. Look at our Suits for 14, 16 and 18-year-old girls—made of plain serges and fancy Scotch mixtures. Cutaway and straight-front coats, plain, envelope-pleated, panel and apron effect skirts. They tell their own story—a story of beauty and conscientious workmanship.

Serge Dresses for Misses and Small Women are strong here. Some are trimmed with braid, satin collars and cuffs; others have lace yokes with bengaline silk collars and cuffs in contrasting colors. Gems of style at..

THE MEN'S STORE
Our Store for Voters Is Separate and Distinct

One may enter it direct from Winter street — or from the Women's store, and as soon as you find yourself in it, you are among men's things exclusively.

It is convenient, the merchandise is properly classified and well arranged, the displays are attractive, there is plenty of strong light and the selling force is "all attention."

SHIRTS are one of the big and important interests there. Spring styles are ready. Let's examine some of them.

$1.50 That's the test price. The men who pay $1.50 for Shirts are in the majority. Therefore, we have applied intelligence, discrimination, taste and knowledge in selecting $1.50 Shirts.

Among them are:

Madras, coat model, printed blue, gray and lavender stripes on self-figured white grounds.

Soft-finished Woven Madras, coat model, detachable folded collar, French cuffs, finished with pocket. Printed colored corded stripes on white grounds.

Russian-corded Cloth, strong, brilliant tints on white grounds, coat model, French cuffs, finished with pocket.

Soft-finished Austrian Cloth, tinted cluster stripes printed on white, medium and dark grounds, coat model, French cuffs.

They are the best $1.50 Shirts we have ever seen. The materials, in style and quality, are unusual. Manufacturers, competing keenly with one another, have pushed the standard way up.

Here are other notable values:

Shirts made of taffeta worsted—fifty per cent. wool. The fabric has the look and feel of flannel, but wears longer than any flannel. All are in medium gray mixtures: coat model, detachable folded collar, French cuffs..... $2.50

SHIRTS at $4.00—Made of Habutai silk; blue, gray, helio stripes on white ground; coat model, French cuffs. All the sewing done with silk.

NECKWEAR Silk a-sheen. Colors a-glint. Don't fail to look at the Scarves of Spring. They are a bright sight.

See these Flowing-End Four-in-Hands at $1.00. They are made of two-toned inverted rep silk. Product of a unique weave trick. You'll like them for their novelty.

And these rich Four-in-Hands—bias, diagonal, crosswise, vertical, horizontal, panel and bayadere stripes. Heavy Silk, $1.50.

KNITTED SCARVES—Their rage hasn't abated. More universal than ever—the new effects give it intensity. All here, $1.00 to $3.00.

Two-weaves in a single Scarve — hand-loom knitted and English crochet — accordion-pleated, dew-drop figures, two-toned and cross stripes.

LATEST SPRING WAISTS

These are spic-and-span Tailored and Semi-Tailored Models—and both of them are open-front styles.

Now, we didn't just "happen" on these Waists in a random way and we are not advertising them mechanically. They are the products of care, skill, taste, thrift—designed to excel all others at similar prices. Examine them. Form your own conclusion.

$5.00 Waists made of chiffon taffeta silk in neat black and blue pencil stripe. Observe the front — clusters of pin tucks, finished with narrow pleating, set off with bias folds and buttons. Tucked back, long sleeves, trimmed cuffs.

$6.00 Waists made of soft messaline silk — navy, brown and slate. Tailored model — front finished with inch-wide tucks, back also tucked, long sleeves with plain cuffs.

SONG BIRDS FLOCK TO BRILLIANT 'OPERA DAY' AT THE AUTO EXHIBIT

Demonstrations of Mechanisms Prove of Great Interest to Intending Buyers.

By J. C. KERRISON.

With the high priced songbirds and warblers of the Boston Opera Company as guests at the auto show today, this has been designated as "Opera Day" by the management.

Many of the prominent opera stars have attended the show earlier in the week, but today they were all present in a body and served as an added attraction.

Today is the turning point of the show, when it starts on its last half of the week. From all appearances even larger crowds will be noticeable than were present at the opening days. While no official figures have been computed yet, Manager Campbell states that all previous attendance records will be broken by many thousands when the pleasure car show closes on Saturday night.

Then comes the commercial truck show next week. When that is ended, it is believed that the total attendance of the two shows will eclipse even the figures of the New York show.

Great Crowd Early on Hand.

This has been the banner day of the week in point of attendance. From the time that the doors were opened this morning, a steady crowd has been pouring into Mechanics Building, until the floor space and booths were well covered.

Many of those present are making their second and even third visit to the show. These are people who are contemplating purchasing a car and want to see everything in sight before they make their final decision on so important a matter.

The show is so big this year that the motoring enthusiast cannot see all that he wants to see on one visit. They spend considerable time at the different booths and finally narrow their choice of cars down to two or three.

The next two days will find them making their final choice, which is the reason why the last two days of the Boston auto show are always the heaviest selling days.

Record Show for Sales.

So far the show has been a hummer for sales. Nearly all the exhibitors report more sales than they have ever experienced at a local show.

Consider the motor car; a n artist's impressions of incidents at the Mechanics Building.

Thousands of dollars will be left by the visitors before the end of the week for the owners of many of the magnificent cars on exhibition.

It is a noticeable thing at the show, that the exhibits which attract the most attention are those with working models on exhibition. The crowd seems to enjoy watching the mechanism at work and Lo wants going round.

This show is ahead of all others in this respect, for nearly all the booths have some part of the engine or motor constantly in operation, which gives the spectator an excellent insight to the manner a car is propelled.

Prices to Fit Purses.

At many booths the visitor can see the stripped chassis, with parts cut away to show the working of the motor, the transmission and other parts, all in operation.

At other booths the interested can see separate motors with walls cut away and the different moving parts labeled and lighted by electricity as they appear in view.

Other booths have motor cylinders which the person can operate by a hand wheel. Then there are other demonstrations of self-starters, magnetos and other essential parts of the finished car.

All these exhibits tend to arouse a keener interest in the motor among the visitors. For that reason, it is almost impossible for anyone who visits the show and has the price, to leave without signing an order for a car.

It is certainly very alluring and makes the individual who cannot afford a car depart with that down-in-the-mouth feeling.

However, those who cannot afford one of the higher-priced cars, certainly can find something to their satisfaction and bearer, their pocketbooks in the so-called popular-priced cars.

Makers Proud of Cars.

There are numerous cars in this class from which to choose at the show. In fact, there are more popular-priced cars on exhibition at this year's show than ever before. And they are all of standard make.

A popular-priced car is one that sells from $500 up to $1,500. In the minds of many people, these cars are thought to be of cheap grade material in their construction. But such is not the case.

There is not a manufacturer who could afford to make a car for one year alone, and that is all a car would last on the market if it did not produce good results.

Every manufacturer is exceedingly jealous of his reputation, and is always ready to have every part of his car put under the closest scrutiny.

Many of these low-priced cars have made enviable reputations by climbing mountains and other contests of speed and endurance, and in some cases stood up better under the hard tests than what are termed higher grade cars.

The popular-priced cars are inexpensive, but they are not "cheap," as a visit to the show and an examination of the products will determine.

NOTES OF THE AUTO SHOW

The most novel car in the show appears to be the runabout exhibited by the Medway Auto Company of Stamford, Ct. It has a chemical apparatus attached, comprising a thirty-five gallon tank, two three-gallon hand extinguishers and 200 feet of hose, and is built for fire chiefs.

Another feature of the car is that it has a self-cranking device different from the self-starters, which does away with the trouble of cranking up the engine. While the car occupies an out-of-the-way booth at the show, it is greatly sought out by people interested in this newest of motor cars.

J. C. J. Flumand, French consul in the port of Boston, was a visitor at the Studebaker booth to inspect the Flanders split chassis. A. L. Gifford of the Studebaker sales department immediately got busy and the consul placed his order for a Flanders "20" touring car.

* * *

The Oakland exhibit in front of the stage in the main hall is attracting a good deal of attention at the show. The limousine car this company is showing is considered one of the prettiest in the show, and is being much talked about. The Oakland people have a large number of cars on exhibition, and occupy another booth as well, in the basement.

* * *

No one visits the show without making a trip to the big stage, on which are exhibited the Packard and Cadillac cars. The Packard exhibit has a car which is the most gorgeous in the show, all its metal parts being gold-plated. These two cars are getting admired by all who inspect them.

* * *

Vice-President Manasco and Special Sales Representative Baker of the famous underslung American car, arrived in town yesterday, and were tendered a complimentary dinner at the Hotel Thorndike last evening by the Essex Automobile Company, which is the New England representative of the American.

* * *

This is the first Boston show Mr. Manasco has attended and he was delighted and surprised at the complete exhibit and the great amount of business that has been transacted.

* * *

Manager Doane sold one of the large American cars to a Back Bay resident, who was so anxious to get the car immediately that he would not wait for it to arrive by freight, but paid the cost to have it come by express.

* * *

Lee Counselman, general manager and vice-president of the Chalmers Motor Company, is in town and was pleased with the attention the Chalmers is attracting at the show.

* * *

Manager Doon of the R. C. H. Corporation was another new arrival at the show and will remain the rest of the week. He was enthusiastic over the impression the R. C. H. car has made here and the large number of sales.

Norman Halliday, local sales manager of the Thomas car is one of the busiest men at the show. Mr. Halliday is one of the pioneers at the business and knows whereof he speaks when he says this is the greatest selling show ever held.

The Thomas car is among those on exhibition that have been greatly in demand and the sales so far recorded for that car, exceed all other shows in this city. The well-known popularity of the Thomas car does not seem to wane in the least.

Walter Godfrey, exhibiting a novel cranking device, is at the show, explaining its merits.

* * *

Last evening, at the "society night" of the show, all the fair visitors present wore red carnations and jonquils. The carnations were given out at the State car booth. The jonquils were passed out at the Velie booth by fifty five-year-old Anna Gardner Coggeshall, who was seated in a car beautifully decorated with streamers of flowers.

* * *

Treasurer and Sales Manager Mathews of the Jackson Company has arrived at the show and praised the local staff for the excellent work they have done. The Jackson car booth is one of the busiest in the building.

* * *

One of the most attractive runabouts to be seen at the show is the robin's egg blue roadster at the National booth. As one goes down the stairs to the basement this car immediately catches the eye. The National is the holder of the world's road race record, and is therefore the centre of a great deal of attention.

* * *

The removable rim has become an absolute necessity, and one of its principal recommendations is the ease with which it be operated. This is demonstrated in the booth of the Dorian rim with which it is necessary to turn but four nuts to remove the rim. Any man, woman or child can do it. The only tool required is a wrench, and for convenience a handy practical brace wrench is furnished.

* * *

Among the prominent men connected with the automobile industry, who are in attendance at the Boston show is James T. Roche, Jr., sales manager of The Locomobile Company of America. Mr. Roche, who is one of the veterans of the business, having been affiliated with the Locomobile Company since 1899, is well known in Boston, this having been his residence for a number of years. During his college days at Harvard Mr. Roche was a noted sprinter and won many important victories.

* * *

W. W. Haskell, New England representative for Monogram oil, the product of the Columbia Lubricant Company of New York, is receiving many callers these days at the Monogram Oil booth. The booth is really a reception room and is located in the balcony overlooking the stage in the main hall. As the company has had the same location every year since the first show in Boston, the trade knows where to find the booth without hardly looking for it.

* * *

"While we have for several years prided ourselves on our originality in motor car building, it is odd to note that the two newest features of our latest model cars were adopted by foreign makers before being considered by American car builders. We refer to—the Knight engine and the worm geared rear axle," says Manager Morse of the Atlas Motor Car Company of Springfield. "We have incorporated in our 1913 cars more of the best features of foreign cars than any other American maker. We have adopted both the Knight motor and worm gear drive, and have embodied several other features found only on the best cars of foreign manufacture."

* * *

The new Moon "40" is called "The Character Car" because all of the engineers and buyers who have seen it carry off the laurels of the big 1912 shows, agree that this comprehensive tribute has been fairly and honestly earned.

* * *

It is interesting to note that the first Peerless sixes were "60-Sixes," and their construction was begun as soon as the early difficulties in securing co-ordination between so many cylinders had been definitely overcome. Smaller horsepower was not then attempted in sixes because they must necessarily cost more than fours and the public had not then been educated up to the advantages of the six. That has passed now and users of fine cars are eager for the six of moderate power.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is 200,000 more than its next highest competitor and 100,000 more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined.

GREAT CROWD EARLY ON HAND TO SELECT CARS FROM BIG VARIETY AT RECORD SHOW.

The New Knight

The poppet valve engine had to go. Atlas cars have been built without poppet valve engines for 12 years. Eventually all cars will be built without them.

The Knight engine started the movement in Europe. The leading cars of Europe discarded poppet valve engines to adopt the Knight. It was easy for us to follow, we had no precedents to go back on. So we have embodied the Knight engines in our new

1913 Model Atlas Knight

Those makers who have disregarded the Knight motor are wondering how long the public will buy cars equipped with engines which will soon be obsolete.

This year is Knight year in automobile history.

Nobody can afford NOT to consider what the Knight motor means to the future of the automobile industry.

If you want to see the biggest value in a Knight motored car at the visit our booth. The 1913 Atlas-Knight is the largest, highest powered car with a Knight engine at anywhere near its price. It is absolutely silent. It runs without ANY vibration. It gets better with use, more powerful, more economical.

Rough Roads play the mischief with car springs left to have their own way

Every violent downward plunge on the car's springs is followed by a vicious recoil that forces them far beyond their normal limit of expansion. That's the direct cause for spring breakage and excessive vibration—the cause of half your car troubles. Eliminate this fault and you have, besides a vastly more comfortable car, a safer and more economical car.

Tires, engine and the whole car benefit by the use of the

which positively controls the spring's action. To secure perfect shock absorption the spring must be controlled so as to exercise normal flexibility. Excessive expansion and contraction must be prevented, restricted expansion and contraction avoided.

There is only one Shock Absorber which insures normal spring action under ordinary as well as extraordinary conditions. That is the Truffault-Hartford.

Have a set put on your car—but before doing so, if possible see the Truffault-Hartford demonstrated at the Automobile Show. This practical demonstration points with certainty to one conclusion—that to your car's comfort, safety and economy the Truffault-Hartford is vitally necessary.

For further proof, if you require it—please note that practically all the 1912 leading models exhibited at the Show are equipped with the Truffault-Hartford. Our catalog will be sent you on request.

Manager Tells How Not to Buy Auto

Cartercar Manager Says Many Purchase Machines With Their Eyes Closed

Fresh from its triumphs at the New York and Chicago automobile shows, the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company has been equipped with a complete exhibit of its products at the Boston show, which opens next Saturday in the Mechanics building.

The exhibit will be in charge of Harry Hatch, manager of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company's local branch, and will include a number of the different kinds of tires manufactured by the company.

Two especially large Necktaut tires, four feet high and three feet in diameter, will be on exhibition. These tires are used on trucks and are made in sizes ranging from 36x5 to 44x10 inches.

"The remarks one hears most frequently about the show are those which refer to the fact that the making of pneumatic tires has become a science," said Manager Hatch yesterday. "Even a few years ago the tire manufacturer had to depend largely on the skill of his workmen, but now the making of tires is almost entirely a matter of machinery. The tires are given much thought to the left hand drive and centre control cars, which are becoming more and more popular. The Goodyear tires are made to fit any of these cars."

MARION NAME QUALITY MARK

W. K. Hadley of the Marion Motor Car Company says:

"Next to the history of motor car manufacture has an automobile been built, universal satisfaction than has the Marion.

"The name Marion has always been a guarantee of quality and stability. Many and while anything radical design, have been early to take advantage of new ideas.

"In the larger Marion models especially we have always emphasized those

The Car You Will be Proud to Own

Here is the stylish, roomy Maxwell Mascotte—the first real family car for less than $1000.

Maxwell Mascotte is the ideal "American Family Car"—the car that meets a great popular demand. The Maxwell Mascotte is the ideal car for the particular man of limited income who has long wanted an automobile of sufficient size—stylish appearance—and perfect efficiency—at a price under $1000.

It has been close figuring, but great purchasing power, unequaled manufacturing facilities, and quantity production of the U. S. Motor Co. make it possible. Compare the Maxwell with any other car selling within $200 of its price. In every way it is a car you will be proud to own.

The same Maxwell Reliability, Durability and 100 per cent Efficiency that won such a complete victory in the Glidden Tour are embodied in this Maxwell.

The Mascotte model bristles with new features, all of which add to the comfort and satisfaction of the buyer

American Touring Champion

$980 f. o. b. Factory (Top extra)

Maxwell Mascotte $980

No contest ever held in this country has furnished such a practical test of automobile efficiency—such a standard for comparison of automobile values—as has the recent Glidden Tour.

Throughout this 1454-mile journey through mud and sand, over swollen streams and storm-swept mountains, the Maxwell team was on time every day, and was the only one to finish with a perfect score. The Maxwell team made a clean sweep—won all the trophies—all the price money in its class—established 100 per cent efficiency at all times

Maxwell is the lowest priced car to ever win a Glidden Tour, yet it broke all Glidden records in the hardest Glidden Tour ever run—and defeated $2000, $3000, $4000 and $6000 cars.

The Glidden Tour furnished the most complete proof of the unequaled service a Maxwell car will give you,—and shows how the Maxwell has earned the significant title "American Touring Champion."

We will gladly give you a demonstration of the Maxwell Mascotte at any time. We want you and your family to see the Mascotte—ride in it—realize its remarkable value.

When you come in, ask for "The Story of the Glidden Tour." How? Judge an Automobile and the Advance 1912 Catalog. If you cannot come today, write for these valuable books

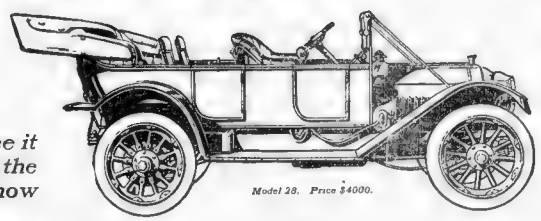
THE Marquette

A New Car with a Unique Reputation



See it at the Show

Model 28. Price $4000.

NO BETTER indication can be found of the public's alertness to recognize unusual quality in automobiles, than in the big strides of progress taken by the Marquette Motor Car. ¶ That this new car should have made such a strong appeal is undoubtedly due to its peculiar advantage in embodying the strong features of design and construction of two already well-known cars—the Rainier and the Welch-Detroit. This parentage has established the Marquette on the market without the usual handicap of the new car of untried and unknown characteristics.

¶ Augmenting this recognized worth is the fact that the Marquette has back of it the General Motors Company organization and resources, which can be accepted as an assurance of permanency and quality, with fullest service responsibility to both dealer and user.

¶ From the viewpoint of appearance, the Marquette possesses elegance which invites instant approval. Mechanically, it leads all rivals, its smooth running, quiet, flexible and powerful motor is an engineering achievement

¶ At the Automobile Show (Mechanics Bldg.), give the Marquette a thorough examination. The same line of models as exhibited will also be on display at our Boston Show Rooms If you will give us the opportunity, we believe we can demonstrate that in the Marquette is offered one of the automobile opportunities of the year

¶ At the same time we are offering to Marquette owners facilities for local service which are truly unusual in all those essentials of promptness and thoroughness so necessary to satisfactory automobile ownership

No-Rim-Cut Tires

Proved Actual Oversize, 16.7%

Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tires are advertised as 10 per cent oversize.

And we claim that this oversize—this over-tiring—adds 25 per cent to the tire mileage.

Lately we made a comparison with many clincher tires of five other leading makes.

We compared them by air capacity—not by calipers. It is air that carries the load.

And we found that our average oversize was 16.7 per cent—much larger than we claim.

Yet these oversize tires—these tires which can't rim-cut—cost no more than other standard tires.

Last Year's Sales, 409,521 Tires

The success of these tires is the sensation of [illegible]

Last year's sales exceeded the [illegible] 12 years put together.

[illegible] to-day's output for [illegible] 1,17 leading motor car [illegible] contracted for [illegible]

[illegible] under that.

[illegible] tires, more than out-selling any other tire that is made.

The Reason

The reason is simply that No-Rim-Cut tires save tire bills, as [illegible] of thousands have proved it.

They make rim-cutting impossible. And 25 per cent of all ruined clincher tires are rim-cut.

These patented tires completely end all rim-cutting worry and expense.

Then the oversize

[illegible] oversize, under average conditions, adds 25 per cent to the tire mileage. It saves the blow-outs due to overloading.

These two features together—No-Rim-Cut and oversize—save millions of dollars to motor car owners.

After 13 Years

After 13 years spent on tire making, these are the best tires we can build.

No fabric or formula, no method or process, can ever build better tires, in all probability.

These tires are made in our patented type, so rim-cutting is forever avoided.

They are made oversize to give extra capacity.

They represent finality in tires. And you get them, when you insist on them, at the cost of the ordinary.

Don't you think it pays?

Weed ANTI-SKID Chains

One of the Most Remarkable Inventions in the History of the Motor Car Industry.

A Chicago newspaper in an editorial in a recent issue says:

"Among the multitude of new creations there is one in the Coliseum Balcony that, comparatively, is old. It is the Weed Chain. Many of the new things are devices intended to prevent skidding—intended to prevent access away from the Weed principle, but the fact is that no other device will do just what WEED CHAINS will do.

In some ways the Weed invention is one of the most remarkable in the history of the motor car industry. When first put upon the market it appeared to the layman to be a crude make-shift. Its effectiveness was self evident, but the skeptic [illegible] and that something far better [illegible] coming. The fact is that it constantly [illegible] and does not ruin tires any more than the ordinary use of the tire—without the chain—wears it.

Another fact is that Weed Chains are universally used by taxicab companies in all cities and these companies do everything money can do to minimize accidents. To avoid damage to their cars and to avoid damage suits by injured "fares" they use WEED CHAINS because no other device at any price is equally effective."

From the City Hall to Worcester

Enough Weed Chains are manufactured every day in the year, which if placed end to end would stretch from Boston's City Hall to Worcester (approximately forty-five miles) and in the last four or five years there have been manufactured and sold more than enough to encircle the earth. Could anything more clearly demonstrate the recognized value of this effective device?

All experienced motorists know how essential WEED CHAINS really are. Without them you cannot prevent skidding on wet, slippery, icy pavements or on muddy, greasy, snow-covered roads. "Foolish dependence on rubber alone may make you liable for criminal negligence." Many expensive, serious accidents have resulted from the neglect of drivers to use Weed Chains.

Insurance companies strongly advise their use on every car they insure.

When used on the front wheels, too, WEED CHAINS give comfortable, easy steering. No cramped fingers; no cramped arms; no sore muscles. Out of car tracks, ruts, snowdrifts and "heavy going"—just like steering on smooth roads.

For your own safety—for the safety of the public, stop at your dealer's today and fully equip your car with WEED CHAINS.

Garford

A SIX cylinder car does not give six cylinder service merely because you see six cylinders under the hood. More often than not you pay for six cylinders but get four cylinder service, and this because the "Six" you buy is a "Six" in appearance only—not in action.

¶ In the Garford "Six" you get actual six cylinder service. It is scientifically and practically correct. The cylinders are cast in two pairs of three cylinders each—as they should be. The oil consumption is remarkably low. The carburetion is right. The fuel is distributed perfectly. At all times you get the full benefit of all of the cylinders—not occasionally. By every test and record the Garford "Six" is the most advanced car on the American market today.

¶ A polished chassis of this car is at the automobile show. See it and you will appreciate its even efficiency.

First Workout For Pilgrims

Kling Delighted With Outlook For Season

Boston Boys on Augusta Grounds

By L. R. MURDOCH.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 7.—Johnny Kling took twenty ball players out this morning for their first workout preliminary to the Pilgrims' actual training. The men looked fit but were not in shape for hard work as the new Boston manager let them down easily.

"We've got a corking good baseball outfit," said Kling. "They look better even than when I looked them over on paper. I met some of them for the first time today and they all look like baseball players. I think we have got a fast team and speed will count.

"Campbell was delighted to join the team and he will compile a first-class outfit. I am sorry about Al Bridwell. We need him just now. He seems to be seriously injured. He ran a nail in his foot and it grew so bad that he is now afraid of blood poisoning. He has laid up for a week. If it does not grow worse he will be here in a week or ten days but the injury counts just now.

"Hess came down from Cincinnati with us and looks good. Buster Brown is in good shape and looks rugged. I met Bradley for the first time. We are counting on him for some good work in the box."

Sweeney Still Balks at Ward Terms

Bill Sweeney announced today that he had not signed, and would not unless President Ward came to terms. Ward said that he had his men here to play baseball and had to talk business so he and Sweeney have not made up yet.

Sweeney and Mrs. Sweeney came from Cincinnati late last night with the Western aggregation but they did not stick with the party. They arrived at the Hotel Albion early this morning.

President Ward was in the lobby at the time but he and Sweeney had no talk about baseball or any other subject. Kling expects Sweeney to join today but he said it was only a guess on his part. In fact he had supposed all along that Sweeney had already come to terms.

It has been a damp, cold dreary Winter around Cincinnati and Newport, Ky., where Bill lives and the pill business has been good, so Mr. Sweeney is in shape to stand the wolf off for quite a while before he will absolutely "need the money."

He sells pills to the sick ones in the off months.

Besides, Bill Sweeney is a photographer and is one of the few baseball men in Augusta today who would rather talk on something besides baseball. He is as much interested in snap shooting as he is in diamond talk.

Campbell Shapes Up Like Real Goods

Bridwell wired today from his home in Portsmouth, Ohio, that he feared his injury was serious and that it would keep him out of the game for a week or two. Kling has a good stock of infielders to draw upon but he likes Bridwell's class and nobody has a look-in at short field if Al is in any kind of shape.

Vin Campbell, the "Beau Brummel outfielder" whom Ward secured from Pittsburg in the Pirate trade, looks good. He is tall and lean. He is the tallest man in the Pilgrim company and looks like he could beat a railroad train from a standing start, particularly a few southern railroad trains.

"I was glad the trade was made," said Campbell today. "It will give me a chance to work and I think I will be all right. I am better satisfied being with the Boston team than I would be with any other in the big leagues."

Kaiser Ives in Cincinnati so he did not have far to travel to join the Western bunch. Joe Crisp, the new backstop, sailed in from Kansas City with Kling himself. "Crisp," said Kling, "is a good catcher who made a fine showing with the Newark team in the Eastern League last year. I know him well."

Bill Rariden, Kling's second catcher, came from Bedford, Ind., where he spent the Winter and came out looking fresh and in good baseball condition. Gowdy dropped in from Columbus, Ohio, Hess from Dayton and Buster Brown from Sioux City. They had a twenty-four hours' ride from Cincinnati and headed for their sleeping places as soon as they struck Augusta.

The Instrument:

This beautiful Grafonola "Favorite," the first instrument of this latest improved type to be offered at anything like its price, is probably the best that money will ever buy. It seems as if clear that the limit has been reached. As a musical instrument, it is all that any musical instrument can be, and all that those costing $200 can claim to be.

The cabinet is built of the choicest mahogany (or of beautiful quarter-sawn oak) polished like the costliest piano.

The "Favorite" plays any size of record—three at one winding, and can be rewound while running, the motor being a powerful triple-spring drive, absolutely silent and always positive and reliable. The tone arm leads the sound waves from the reproducer into the sound chamber, where it is amplified and poured out through the front, subject to reduction in volume by the partial or complete closing of the double doors. The start-and-stop lever is combined with a speed regulator lever, all in handy reach. The turn-table stands above the top of the cabinet when the lid is raised, admitting easy access to the record and needle.

The Records:

The outfit of records we have selected from the best selling and most popular of all classes, and includes the famous Sextette from "Lucia" and the equally famous Quartette from "Rigoletto," which ought to be extremely interesting to any of your friends who own talking machines and have paid $12 for those two selections alone. You are at liberty to make your own selection of records if you prefer.

It is an instrument that any man, of any means, may be proud to own and use for a lifetime.

In addition to those 24 selections, we will give you, free, one of our "Demonstration" double-disc records, which everybody admits is worth at least sixty cents of any man's money. All of these records are guaranteed to be superior to all others in tone, in surface and in durability.

They will outwear any other make of records almost two to one.

"I CAN'T go, Peggy!" he cried desperately. "I want you! I want you so badly!" The words came out between his set teeth and she could hear his shirt bosom creak above the straining muscles. "I want you for my own—tonight—tomorrow!—and all the nights and all the days! I've been very good. I've always done just what you told me. I have come and gone just as the whim has struck you! You know how deeply I love you!"

A Sudden Blow

"Friends!" He flung the word back at her again. "It's not true! Look at the risks we have taken! Do friends run the risks we have run? Why, we haven't even tried to fool the world! So, for heaven's sakes, don't let's try to fool ourselves!"

Peggy gasped. "People don't think we are!—"

"People don't think!" he laughed bitterly. "My darling, people are only too glad to think. You know what is said about others!—

"calling! I can't hear it!" she gasped. "And you'll spoil everything!—I don't—love you like that!—I'm sorry if it—hurts you! I'd rather die!—

Peggy choked back a scream of horror. "No, No, No!" she gasped. "Oh, I hate to think of that! We have only been friends—very kind friends," she went on feverishly as if it were necessary only to convince him. "Why shouldn't they think, otherwise? Oh, I suppose it's all my fault—all my fault! I don't think ungenerous things of others! I only wanted a companion—a good friend!"

HE SUDDENLY CAUGHT THE SLENDER FORM IN HIS ARMS OF STEEL AND CRUSHED IT TO HIM.

Peggy's Struggle

"Never mean! Good heavens! Collingwood blazed out. "I told you six months ago that I loved you! And ever since then you have let me go everywhere with you and I've told you again and again of my love!"

"I don't know," she repeated in a weary little voice. "But I certainly don't love you now, sir. You think I'm neglected—that is absurd." She drew herself up. "George knew I did not love him—he trusts me fully. There will be no crash."

He Trusts Me

She broke out of his embrace and with a gesture of anger he rose and burst to the phone.

"Well, well, who is it?" he demanded testily. "What's that?" He hastily pressed the receiver to his shirt front. "Peggy, it's Admaston! He says he's arrived at his club and wants to see you at once! Says it's important! What shall I tell him?"

"Tell him I'm not here!" Peggy cried. "I'm not at home to anyone!"

"WHEN you think that the King himself had no part in this abominable crime?"

"I think decidedly not."

"I am glad of that," said Rickworth grimly. "And I am glad of your opinion, too. Now, Mr. Baldness, there is one more question I want to ask you. Did you or did you not tell Mr. Russell that you would be at the Hotel Ritz at 10 o'clock last night?"

Mr. Russell and I were to dine together. I told him I would be there. He said he would be there. I was sure. It is well-known that Prince Eugen is staying with Mr. Russell. I knew that Mr. Russell would be at the Ritz. I knew that he would be alone. I knew that he would be glad to see me. I knew that he would be glad to see me. I knew that he would be glad to see me. I knew that he would be glad to see me.

The door opened and Nella entered, carried out his intention on the spot. There were tears in her eyes.

"Oh, dad!" she exclaimed. "I've only just heard you were in the hotel. We looked for you everywhere. Come at once, Prince Eugen is dying!—" Then she saw the man sitting on the bed, and stopped.

"His highness must be roused, at the most any cost," said Hans.

The Latest Dances and How to Dance Them

By Maurice, the Cabaret Artist——No. I—The Tango

The top picture illustrates a position in one of the slides or glissades of the Tango. In performing a "slide" Maurice keeps slightly behind his partner, first holding but one of her hands. At the end of the slide both hands are grasped and the dancers fall into the position shown.

The bottom picture illustrates the pose adopted after eight slides have been taken. During the pose, as well as in changing positions in the dance, both dancers must continue absolutely in time and rhythm.

By MAURICE

What a great deal now-a-days is said with the craze for freak dancing. The Turkey Trot, the Bunney Hug, the Grizzly Bear, the San Francisco Dip have all occurred a full share of the public prints and the very names of some of them are enough to arouse cold shivers of horror, especially among those who have never seen them danced—taut is—unanced properly.

Almost every dance, even the stately minuet, can be made grotesque and revolting if the dancers wish to do so. On the other hand, these modern dances are having a remarkable vogue among society people that there must be something to recommend them, and there is. These dances, performed in the conventional way in which they are danced in drawing rooms are not [illegible] the two-step or the Boston, but they allow of more originality in the figures of the dance, and they give the graceful dancer a chance to show a variety of pretty poses and steps.

One of the most graceful of these dances is the Tango, which is society's version of the Tango Argentino

Can Be Acrobatic

On the stage the Tango is frequently an acrobatic dance and it can be made as strenuous as the dancers choose. On the other hand, danced by those who dance with ease and grace, it loses all these qualities and is just as proper as—[illegible] and far more graceful than some of the Russian folk dances.

To dance the Tango well one must have the right kind of partner, a good deal of inspiration and originality, and you should know a few steps which I am going to describe to you.

The Tango is danced to Spanish music with a heavily accented rhythm the dance originated in Buenos Ayres and its popularity has spread all over the world. Just now it is absolutely the rage here. One can keep the rhythmic beauty of the dance and yet banish every idea of suggestion.

To do this one must keep the ideal of elegance in mind, elegant postures and elegant attitudes. For minute the positions of the dancers look awkward or slouchy the beauty of the dance is lost and those who wish to can find it objectionable.

The Tango music presents complete and continuous contrasts in time and measure. Some of it is Spanish in rhythm and at other times it suggests African Bacchides.

The dancers change their steps and positions with the change in the music, which occurs at intervals of eight bars.

Begin as Waltz

As the Tango is a dance of the people it is spontaneous, and the steps and positions change not according to set rules, but according to the mood and whim of the dancers.

The two dancers must be absolutely in accord and must feel the music, keeping perfect time and continuing the dance steps no matter what the pantomime.

The dancers begin holding each other as for a waltz. After the eight measures they face to the right, making short swirls, glissades, or slides with the right foot and describing a circle with the eight slides. While they do this the arms are extended. In this way it is easy for the gentleman to step behind his partner and dance eight measures with her in this position, ending with pose which is shown in the picture. During the pose as well as in changing positions in the dance both parts must continue absolutely in time and rhythm.

If you haven't got natural rhythm and can't keep absolute time don't try to dance any of the new dances; indeed don't try to dance at all.

Rhythm is especially necessary in the Tango because each beat of the music should be accented by a movement of the arms or body. When the arms are extended they are moved up and down. When the partners are dancing in the conventional position a very slight movement of the hips such as is used in Spanish dances brings out the rhythm of the music.

The slides can be done with the gentleman close behind the lady or with the lady in front, and holding only one of her partner's hands with her imitates the sliding back of her in front of the gentleman in the waltz.

In a close position he places his hands on the lady's waist, being still behind her, and after the eighth measure swings her around to the first position of the dance.

Twenty Famous Men

THE FATHER OF A GREAT STATE

By THOMAS TAPPER

WILLIAM PENN was no Englishman. He was born in the year 1644. He was a traveler, a man of affairs, an adviser of kings, and a thinker on those subjects which are more permanent than places, business, kings or queens.

At the age of forty-eight Mr. Penn began to write about those thoughts that seemed to him of permanent value. He had mingled with men of low and high degree, he had spent some time in jail, he was the friend of anyone in trouble, and he had founded a colony in America that bore his name. All this made him feel that he could safely write out certain impressions of life that might be of value to others. That he was a man of honorable intent he proved to the world by making a treaty with the Indians under a great tree on the bank of the Delaware River; a treaty that has been advertised at one not ratified by an oath, and one that was never broken.

II.

William Penn lived a remarkably busy life among men, and yet when he came to give a name to his little book he called it "Fruits of Solitude."

Neither he says in a schoolroom few are to learn in, though it is the best of all places for instruction. "Some parts of my book," he says, "are the results of serious reflection, other the flashings of a lucid intervals."

Like the famous note book of the Roman Emperor, Marcus Aurelius, this, too, was written for "private satisfaction While William Penn wrote, it was, so to say, to box his own compass, to see where he was on the ocean of life and to put down in his log book the impressions he had picked up on the journey. And all this for his present satisfaction and his future guidance.

Penn offers to us two valuable suggestions: 1) Until we stop and step a little aside out of the noisy crowd of the world and calmly look about we shall never be able to know ourselves. (2) We waste nothing so freely as time. Time is what we most want, and yet we use it the worst.

If we go no further in the fruits of solitude than this, it would pay most of us to get these two hints. We are all guilty. We all hope the noise of the crowd will keep us from hearing the still small voice within, and we all waste time.

But if we read further we shall find that he keeps up the good advice, and is always practical. His words are simple, paragraphs short, each one planned so that we can easily keep our place; also we can stop now and then, at every stopping place have something to think upon that is worth while.

You may think on reading the first pages of this book that it is a religious book and you may throw it in the corner and pick up something more exciting.

It is not a religious book, although it is a serious one. But to every one, now and then, even to the butcher, the baker and the candlestick man, life takes a serious turn. When it does this for any one of these gentlemen, it would be well for him to have a little seriousness about him, for in it he would find comfort.

Though Penn's little book was first published in 1693 (and without his name), yet its common sense is of use in these days. For example:

1. Excess in dress is a costly folly. The trimmings of the vain would clothe the naked.

(Not long ago this paper printed a news item about a woman whose evening shoes were made of humming birds' breasts.)

2 Do nothing improperly

(Because things are not properly done it is very easy in these days for a hundred more girls to be roasted to death because the fire escapes are not in order)

3. The glory of a servant is fidelity

(Not long ago the officers of the law had to bring a man home from Mexico who had trotted down there with about two hundred thousand dollars of his neighbors money)

4. Be rather bountiful than expensive.

(A few days ago, a man of forty explained, before he went to jail, how he had fixed his accounts so as to spend a few thousands of dollars more than he was entitled.)

Penn's Fruits of Solitude apply in 1912 with so close a fit that you cannot see the joints.

Real Enterprise

THE foreign printer rushed into the editor's sanctum with a scowl Look on his face.

"I've just got a letter from the paper manufacturers," he said, "and they refuse to supply us with any more till the account is paid. What shall we do? I haven't a scrap in the place."

"Just think," said the editor, as he continued the conference.

"Once more," it ran, "the Mudhorough Gazette requests for enterprise. We are not only paper to give a correct portrait of His Gracious Majesty the Duke of Aberbrown. But it has been very carefully prepared, and in order to show his complexion and color, about which there have been many disputes, we have gone to the expense of printing the entire edition on paper which shows these accurately. Further copies can be had by applying to the publisher."

Got His Answer

IT was a picture representing a young man at the feet of his lady love that caused the ire of the crusty bachelor.

"Before I would ever kneel to a woman," he said, "I would encircle my neck with a rope and stretch it." And then, turning to the artist who sat near him, he inquired:

"Do you not think it would be the best thing I could do?"

It would, undoubtedly, be the best for the woman," was the quiet reply.

ANNETTE KELLERMANN

The Famous Swimmer and Physical Culture Expert, on

The Right Road to Health

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN

I MUST have eight hours of sound sleep every night if I want to keep in perfect physical condition.

Many a woman has come to me complaining of her bad health, and when I sifted her troubles down she was merely suffering from these things—too little sleep and too much food.

"Oh, but it's impossible for me to go to bed early, and when I do I can't sleep. I'm used to staying up late."

This is the kind of thing I get for an answer when I suggest going to bed at a reasonable hour. Then my lady goes away thinking that I can't know very much about health since I recommend such simple things like fresh air, sleep and exercise.

What she would really like me to give her is some very expensive magic drug that would make her radiantly and quite impossibly beautiful after one trial.

People won't believe that health is to be gained by simple means. Most people would rather be operated on and have their appendix removed than exercise self control and common sense about eating, or use their will power and exercise the sluggish organs of the body.

As for sleep, probably because it is the most simple and natural of nature's restoratives, we abuse it as much as we can and take just enough to keep us going.

Cheating Themselves

I believe that two-thirds of the stimulants used are for the purpose of cheating oneself of the rightful amount of sleep.

Tea, coffee, liquor and drugs are taken to keep people awake, and much of the drinking which goes on at night is resorted to at first by men and women in order to stimulate the tired and worn-out nerves which crave sleep, while their misguided owners think they want to keep up with the crowd.

After the nerves have been accustomed to the stimulus of excitement, liquors or highly spiced foods, they learn to crave it, and then it is really impossible for the person to go to sleep at an early hour. Such people claim to be sufferers from insomnia, and, indeed they are though one might say it was their own fault.

Other people suffer from insomnia for the opposite reason—the deadly monotony of their lives and their longing for variety and change.

Now I believe that you can get some variety and freshness into the most drab-colored life, and without spending money, either. People, especially city people, have all kinds of opportunities of doing and seeing things, and a great many don't take advantage of them, or know that they exist. I [illegible] that the free swimming baths are open in the evening. Many people don't realize that libraries contain amusing books as well as learned ones, and are scared off.

The children with their perfect unconsciousness and their natural curiosity, have the right attitude. I remember on the day that the New York Library was opened, and thousands of people drifted through in the awe-struck way, the children, without more ado, found the rooms allotted to them settled themselves comfortably in window seats and at the little tables, and spent the day with picture books and stories, just as if they had been there for years

Monotony a Cause

A child is so busy finding out things that life is never monotonous except when it is cooped up by unthinking grown people.

All this doesn't seem to have anything to do with insomnia, but it has. Monotony breeds insomnia; so does bad air; so do stimulants, so does worry. Some of these things you can change. Where you can't find and cure the cause of your sleeplessness, try these exercises after you have gone to bed:

EXERCISE FOR INSOMNIA.

Lie flat on the bed. Grasp the top of the bedstead with hand and stretch the body, trying to touch the foot of the bed with the toes. Now try to drag yourself upward, having the body quite limp, and exercising the arms only. Relax completely after each movement. Inhale while you pull yourself up; exhale when you let go.

Breathe rhythmically; that is, count while you breathe and while you hold the breath, and exhale in again. Breathe as deeply as you can, counting seven very slowly. Retain the breath for the same number, and exhale also to seven counts. Repeat this until you begin to feel drowsy.

Most people should sleep on the left side, but it is even better to sleep flat on the back without any pillow at all, or a very small one. The windows should always be open.

So many people have asked me for certain special exercises that I will give those desired most to-day, particularly the first two are good for overcoming insomnia, as well as for other purposes.

EXERCISE FOR STRENGTHENING THE DIGESTIVE ORGANS.

Lie flat on the back, preferably on the floor, but the bed will do. Support the weight of the body on the shoulders and heels. Exercise the body an I lift it up, bringing the trunk as far away from the ground as possible. Hold this position as long as you can without straining, then relax, and repeat it several times.

EXERCISE FOR STRENGTHENING THE SHOULDERS.

Lie flat on the bed. Put the weight of the body on the head and hips, lifting up the chest as high as possible while contracting the muscles of the back. This raises the shoulders several inches from the bed. Hold this position for a few moments before relaxing, and then rest before repeating it.

EXERCISE FOR DEVELOPING THE CALF OF THE LEG.

Where the body generally is undeveloped it is naturally useless to expect to develop the calf of the leg without undertaking general exercises for the improvement of the figure. This especial exercise for the leg, however, is excellent, and can be done at almost any time. Sit upright. Place the feet together and raise the heel until only the toes rest on the ground. Exercise the muscles of the calf of the leg, putting a great deal of strength into them. Press the ground with the toes, then relax and let the foot regain its normal position. Repeat the exercise for five minutes at a time. This exercise, like many others, is of no real use unless it is done very frequently.

The exercise which is most often requested is "something to reduce the hips." There are many such exercises, and one of the best is just to swing the body forward, arms hanging down, and touch the floor with the fingers without bending the knees. Any woman who can do that does not need to worry about her figure. She still has a good one.

Desperate Desmond

Our Hero Gets Some Distance Up in the Air, but Then Does a Humpty-Dumpty

By Hershfield

YOUR LOVER, CLAUDE CAN NEVER CLIMB THIS CHINESE WALL TO SAVE YOU ROSAMOND
HORRORS! I CANNOT SCALE THIS HIGH CHINESE WALL TO RESCUE MY ROSAMOND! I MUST GET ON!
DESMOND YOU CUR. I HATE YOU. I LOVE ONLY MY HERO CLAUDE ECLAIRE
PLISCO BALL PLAYING GLATE
THESE CHINESE WILL NOT LISTEN TO MY PLEA
A HOME RUN
THE EXCITED CHINAMAN HAS UPSET HIS BASKET I HAVE A PLAN
HE HAS MISSED HIS BASKET AND IS NOW REACHING TO LIFT IT UP HE DOES NOT SEE ME
I GET BACK BASKET
BASKET VELY HEAVY BUT I MUST HULLY TO BIRD AND ANIMAL STORE
I'M BEING LIFTED, IN A FEW MINUTES I WILL BE TOP AND FOIL THE VILLAIN DESMOND
HA ROSAMOND CLAUDE IS FOILED HA, HA, HA!
HORRORS SHAMES, THIS CHINAMAN IS SUPPLYING ANIMAL STORES I MUST JUMP OU

Scene inside the great walls of the Chinese city, the villain Desmond mocks at the helpless Claude, who cannot scale the great pile of masonry. Rosamond, unable to get a wire, to see the manager, to suit her hero in any way, still defies the villain and believes that Claude will find some way to circumvent the heartless scoundrel sooner or later.

What could be better for bleachers than the parapet of the huge wall? The Chinese find it excellent and they now crowd it like sparrows on a wire, to see the native team playing a touring nine from San Francisco. Baseball is one of the blessings our civilization is giving to the Orient.

In the wild excitement which baseball engenders—you have perhaps experienced this yourself when the score is tied and your team has the bases full—the Chinaman with the big basket knocks it over oblivious to the loss of his property, and (Chinese usually don't miss much.

Claude, down on the ground outside the wall, sees the big basket and at once gets an idea. He crawls into the basket under the cloth which covers it, hoping that the unwitting owner will soon miss his property and with a hook and catches the handle. The stock dealer's that when he recovers it Claude will be taken inside the city limits by the unwilling Chinese baseball fan.

Sure enough, the "Plisco" team having won the game, the Chinaman forgets about has to pull it up nevertheless and Claude rejoices in his success.

Alas! for the plans of our hero. In the basket is a bunch of dangerous snakes which the Chinaman was taking to a live animal store. Our hero therefore has to jump out and now he is back on the ground where he started from. Tomorrow we shall see his next attempt.

URGE BILL FOR AN INCOME TAX

The forces of organized wealth are making their last desperate stand in this Commonwealth to prevent the ratification of the federal income tax amendment, declared Frank J. Donahue, Democratic candidate for Secretary of State, last night. The hearing was on a bill introduced by Mr. Donahue in favor of the ratification of the federal income tax and on Governor Foss' inaugural recommendation in favor of the amendment.

Frank J. Donahue, ex-Senator Herbert C. Joyner of Great Barrington, Whitfield Tosh of Worcester and others urges the passage of the measure. John Candler Cobb, chairman of the taxation committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce was the only one who appeared in opposition.

Mr. Donahue said, in part: "Thirty-one States have already ratified the amendment and the forces of wealth are now making their stand to prevent the necessary 36 additional States from ratifying it this year, that wealth may continue to escape paying a just share of the burdens of the government whose protection and benefit have made the amassing of these enormous fortunes possible.

"The fight against the income tax is purely selfish. It is an elementary principle of taxation and wealth should be taxed upon whenever found.

John Candler Cobb presented to the committee resolutions adopted by the taxation committee of the Chamber of Commerce in opposition to the ratification of the Income Tax amendment. The resolutions contained the following reasons for opposing the amendment:

1—Because it represents a change in the methods of federal taxation from indirect to direct taxes.

2—Because it will interfere with the establishment of an efficient system of taxation between legislation which the Chamber of Commerce is now favoring in Massachusetts.

The resolutions says in part: "The giving of such power to the federal government would seriously limit the field of State taxation so as to reduce the possibilities of the State raising revenue needful for its purposes."

SOUTH POLE DISCOVERED BY SCOTT

AMUNDSEN HEARD FROM SIMULTANEOUSLY WITH RUMOR OF SCOTT'S SUCCESS.

The Amundsen expedition started out originally in quest of the North Pole. In April, 1909, Amundsen, already famous for his discoveries, among them the route of the Northwest passage, published exhaustive details of his proposed dash.

When Amundsen left Norway on the steamship Fram it was announced that he would be absent seven years. Suddenly, upon his arrival at Madeira, some months later, the explorer decided to join the exciting international hunt for the South Pole.

The letter received last June was written upon the Fram and mailed when the ship touched Funchal, Madeira.

Amundsen's dangerous rival in the dash for the South Pole was Captain Scott, who headed the most perfectly equipped polar hunt ever sent from England. Scott, a British navy, a German, an Australian and a Japanese expedition were headed for the same destination.

Famous as Explorer.

Amundsen's most famous exploring feat was in the little Norwegian vessel Gjoa, through what has been called the impossible Northwest passage from the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific, north of British America. He was three years making it; conducting during the interval, some interesting researches on the exact site of the north magnetic pole.

He finally got through, ending his voyage at San Francisco, where the city purchased his vessel and keeps it as a local object of interest.

To this expedition the Norwegian manager succeeded where Hudson, Sir Jerry Franklin and fifty others had failed.

The Scott party remained silent in London. Immediate inquiry was made at the quarters of the Norwegian Geographical Society. Officials of that celebrated and conservative organization declared that no travelers stated they had heard a rumor Captain Scott had reached the South Pole, and found the South Pole. But the R. G. S. officials admitted that they had no confirmation. They were waiting further news.

AMUNDSEN CAME TO THIS CITY TO LECTURE IN 1907

In 1907 after he had braved two stormy winters in the frozen North and had learned the habits and life of the Eskimos, Capt. Amundsen, the first man who has ever piled a ship through the Northwest Passage, visited Boston. He lectured here on his voyage.

Sailing from Norway on June 17, 1903, then only thirty-one years old, Capt. Amundsen arrived in San Francisco, October, 1906, after three and one-half years away from the lands of civilization. His tour brought him along the northern coast of Greenland, up through the Behring Straits, then through the Behring Sea, Alaska to the sunny orange groves of California.

While stopping in the frozen North he took the majority of observations of the North Pole, at the same time spending two bleak and stormy winters with the fur-clad Eskimos. As provisions on his sloop were ample for four years' period, he did not have to put himself under any obligations to his northern friends. Even there he discovered that bigamy and polygamy exist in the far North, for on account of a scarcity of Eskimo women and a superabundance of men, every woman who marries takes to herself two husbands.

While plowing through the ice fields the captain found the relics by some ship of a former explorer. Sir John Franklin, who made the tour from 1845 to 1848, either the flag of the English people. And it was just ten years before that the captain's Norwegian predecessor, Nansen, who had acquired some fame as an explorer, came to Boston.

While in Boston Captain Amundsen was entertained at the B. A. A. at a luncheon and at various other places of note. He spoke in Tremont Temple on "The Great Northwest Passage." Governor Guild introduced him.

Given Many Honors.

Many honors have been awarded Amundsen in this country. He was nominated as a member of the Aydiguzian Society of America by the Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, and the geographical societies of Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Chicago have bestowed upon him honorary membership. In Norway he has been honored by receiving the Grand Cross of Olaf of Norway, which was presented him by King Haakon, when he returned from his successful Arctic voyage.

Captain Scott, wife and child, and map of route he took.

Studied Magnetic Pole.

Since Columbus tried to reach the East Indies by sailing westward around the globe and was stopped by the American continent there have been constant efforts to find a passage around the northern shores of the continent and this route was called the Northwest Passage.

Northumberland Inlet and were discovered by John Cabot while he was attempting to locate the passage in 1497. Since then there have been many other attempts made to find the same route of the passage. For more than 400 years they failed in vain and millions of money and hundreds of lives have been sacrificed. All these efforts were without result until Captain Amundsen won success. His party of seven men started out from Christiania, Norway, at midnight on June 16, 1903, on board the sloop. Captain Amundsen was fitted for the work by years of careful training and much study. His vessel was of only forty-nine tons, he believing that in order to make the passage the boat must be small and of light draft.

For two years he remained in King William's Land, taking observations of the earth's magnetism so as to bring back absolutely reliable data as to the magnetic North Pole. This fits one of the objects of his expedition. Continuing his way westward during the summers of 1905 and 1906, he emerged through Behring Strait on September 1, 1906, having finally accomplished the one great geographical feat which still remained on earth outside of reaching the actual poles.

He was given a royal welcome on his arrival in his native land, Norway.

Scott Sailed in 1910.

Captain Robert F. Scott, who is now forty-four years old, put out from the Thames on his expedition in January, 1910, with sixty men, twenty Siberian ponies, thirty dogs and two motor sledges. His ship was an old Dundee whaler, the Terra Nova, remodelled and strengthened for the Antarctic expedition. Next to the Fram, the ship used by Captain Amundsen, the Terra Nova was looked upon as one of the best fitted ships ever taken into the polar regions.

The scientific staff Scott took was the largest and most capable ever enlisted in a polar search. The expedition was backed by $200,000 from the British government and private subscriptions. Since Captain Scott's departure Sir Clements Markham has issued a call for an additional $250,000 to be applied to the expenses of the expedition. Scott and Amundsen both are members of the Antarctic, and for this reason have been especially equipped to meet conditions. Each has made numerous trips.

PEARY EXPRESSES PLEASURE AT NEWS OF DISCOVERY

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, retired, the American explorer, who discovered the North Pole, expressed pleasure today when he read Captain Amundsen's announcement that he had reached the South Pole. The expedition had reached the South Pole. Peary refused to discuss the Scott achievement until he heard further details.

PACKERS ASK TO BE FREED

CHICAGO, March 7.—Attorneys for the ten millionaire meat packers on trial here for violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, today demanded that Federal Judge Carpenter apply the "rule of reason" to the charge that the defendants have formed a trust, and turn them loose. The demand was made in a long motion to the court, setting out specific points which the attorneys claim will free the packers, the government charge has not been substantiated. The first point in the motion brought out the "rule of reason" contention set up by the Supreme Court of the United States in the decision in the Standard Oil suit against the Standard Oil Company.

HOUGH'S NECKERS PLEAD FOR OWN TOWN

Citizens of Quincy were on hand in large numbers before the Legislative Committee on Towns today when a hearing was given on the petition of residents of Hough's Neck that their territory be included in the proposed new city of Quincy. Hough's Neck is a section of about 1,000 people, according to the petitioners, and the city will be represented in opposition by City Solicitor John W. McCormack. Mr. McCormack said that Quincy foresees four large dance halls in Hough's Neck, but the Board of Health has refused to issue sanitary regulations for the buildings. He estimated that the new city would have a revenue of about $15,000 with running expenses of about $12,000. He said the petitioners now will try to have the bill amended to preserve the rights of Quincy in every way.

GALLINGER DECLINES TO HELP GOV. BASS

CONCORD, N. H., March 7.—Senator Gallinger this afternoon said that Governor Bass declining to co-operate with him in his movement for presidential primaries in New Hampshire on the ground that such a plan is not authorized by State law. He adds: "While I do not believe the State committee has the legal right to refer a State-wide primary such as you suggest for the people to vote for the State convention, I can see no reason why the governor should object to that plan unless he is to be used at the caucuses to elect delegates to be voted for in convention such as those used in the convention itself, shall be pledged to support Taft or Roosevelt or Roosevelt delegates, or Taft ticket and Roosevelt ticket."

ROXBURY STORAGE SALESROOMS

DON'T PAY PRIDE PRICES For PIANOS

But you must expect to pay for material, work of construction, legitimate expenses covering rents, salesmen's salaries—all these things you must pay for in all pianos and pianos alone. In buying a piano you must avoid paying Pride Prices like the Easy Marks—that is, buying a piano on name alone. We admit that the names of makers of high-class pianos are good guarantees of value and quality, and furthermore we admit that the name of a fine piano is entitled to a good price for his genius—musical, artistic, etc., but in these days of fierce competition you don't have to pay too big a price for even these qualities. We go into it cold, enter the competitive market and buy at sacrifice cash prices the best of pianos, some new and some used. They go on our sacrifice floor tagged at a price that covers nothing but hard back and necessary. We have all makes. We play no favorites. We sell—that's all.

Was Your Baby Born the Last Day of Last Month?

If So, on What Day Will Its Next Birthday Fall? Something About a Baby's Value and Education.

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner.

There were twenty-nine days in February this year—that happens once in four years.

On that day many tens of thousands of babies were born on the surface of the globe—white babies, black babies, yellow babies, thin babies, fat babies, blue-eyed and dark-eyed babies, BUT NO BAD BABY. Every baby would be good as a baby and as a man if it had a chance.

The baby born on February 29 can have a real, genuine birthday, apparently, only once in four years. This brings out the following question from one of our readers:

Editor American:

Will you kindly enlighten me with an answer in your paper to the following question:

If a baby is born February 29 on what date does its birthday fall the following year? Very truly yours,

ALEXANDER E. MONCHES.

The mothers and fathers of other leap year babies have the same question in their minds.

The baby's birthday will be February 29 whenever leap year comes around with twenty-nine days in February, and the birthday will be February 28 in other years. The baby's birthday must be kept in February, not moved up to March, because there are birthday stones and astrological nonsense and other amusing follies connected with the month of birth.

Besides, a baby born on February 29 this year will have lived on the earth one year—365 days—on February 28 next year—consequently he will be entitled to celebrate on February 28 his birthday, which comes ONE YEAR AFTER HIS BIRTH.

Remember that a baby born on the 29th of February is supposed to be a very valuable and intelligent baby, one to be highly prized, one worth at least four times as much as an ordinary baby.

Therefore, Mr. Alexander E. Monches and all others with leap year babies, take good care of them.

Don't play with them too much while they are young.

Don't let children tease them or grown people fondle them.

Keep them clean, see that they have plenty of fresh air to breathe at night and by day.

Make sure, after they are weaned, that they have the right kind of milk AND PASTEURIZED MILK.

Remember that you live again in your baby, and that that is ONE kind of after life of which you can be absolutely certain.

Don't encourage the baby to walk too soon—that is bad for his legs and his soft little bones, which at first are only cartilage.

Don't encourage your baby to think too soon—that is bad for his little stomach, which requires for digestion the blood that thinking takes to the brain.

Don't allow anybody but its parents and its little brothers and sisters to kiss the baby ever—and let absolutely nobody except the mother kiss the baby on the mouth. (Better if she could avoid that, but she can't.)

Remember that the sickly baby is often the MOST VALUABLE BABY, the one of which the parents are proud in the end. Babies are sometimes sickly because an unusually brilliant nervous system makes impossible the rugged health of duller babies, or because an extremely active brain uses up the blood supply and weakens digestion.

Remember that a child should use its eyes above all things. Look at the picture on this page, which we take from this month's copy of a magazine called The World Today. This picture, which illustrates the opinions of Thomas A. Edison about children and education, is important to parents, and they should read what Edison says in The World Today—if they can afford to pay twenty-five cents for a magazine, otherwise not.

This picture shows you the eyes of a child and the eyes of three animals—a cat, monkey and wolf.

As you bring up your child, remember that during the first seven years PRACTICALLY ALL EDUCATION SHOULD BE TAKEN IN THROUGH THE EYES. For millions of years living creatures on this earth have been educated by the eyes alone. All of the animals except man have practically no education except what the eye can give.

The human being until ten years of age or older is a young animal, and his eyes really ought to be his only teachers.

The eyes of a child are eager, willing and able to give the young brain the knowledge that it needs.

Pictures in books and real pictures in the fields are what the child needs, NOT WORDS GROUND INTO THE MEMORY.

Let your baby grow up comfortably and HAPPILY, learning EASILY, which is the only good learning.

Don't force the child to learn through the ears and through lessons at an age when it ought to learn through the eyes.

And don't have the child strain its eyes or its little mind in studying foolish, complicated patterns such as some unwise teachers put before young children.

There are two great curses in the world. One is the curse of ignorance and the other is the curse of false and forced education.

Nine-tenths of the world's great men have succeeded in spite of lack of education. And many men that might have been great beyond question have been ruined utterly by the wrong kind of education forced upon them.

Remember that knowledge which is not presented to children in such a way that they accept it gladly IS FALSE AND HARMFUL KNOWLEDGE.

The teachers that cannot make study attractive should at least not make it painful.

Look at the eager eyes of the child in this picture and the same eager eyes in the animals above the child, and realize that THERE in the eyes is the opening to the child's brain, the avenue through which knowledge should travel to the young mind.

And, above all, take the greatest care of your baby—for there are three things that a man can do in this world that are worth while:

He can add to the knowledge or possession of the human race.

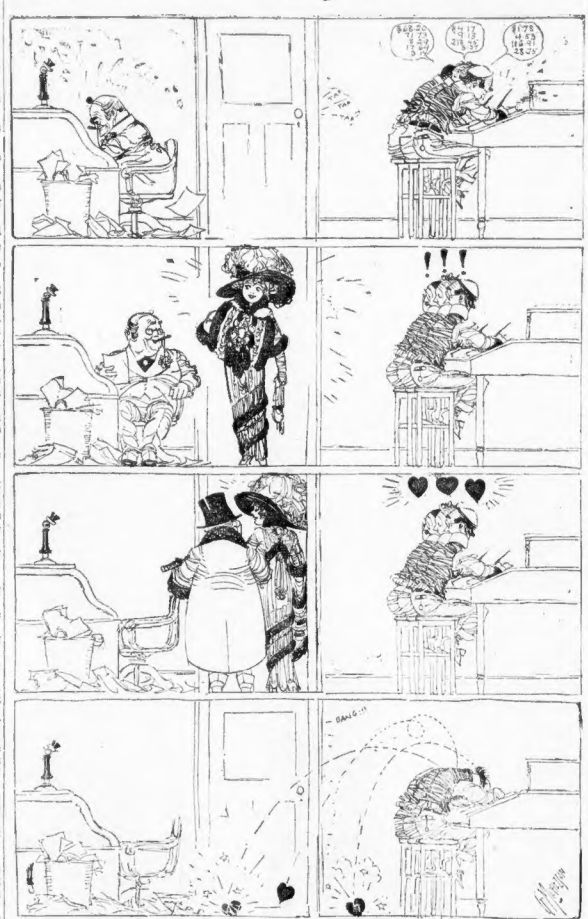
He can fight against the sufferings of humanity.

He can leave behind him as his contribution to his race a child that will help carry on the work of developing and civilizing this planet.

A Child Is Educated Through Its Eyes

Let your children learn BY SEEING. Through the eyes they learn gladly. Do not curse them with knowledge forced upon them in other ways. This picture we take, by permission, from Thomas A. Edison's views on the education of children, published in the March number of the magazine, "The World To-day." Mr. Edison says truly that when a child hates its school the trouble is with the school, rather than with the child. (See editorial.)

When the Boss' Daughter Calls on Pa



MARRIED LIFE JOKE BOOK, the funniest of the Sunday AMERICAN'S great series, illustrated by the AMERICAN'S world-famous comic artists and handsomely bound in colored cover for permanent use, will be given FREE (in Greater Boston) with next Sunday's AMERICAN.

The Rich Can Enjoy Themselves on Sunday—Why Not Give Those Who Are Obliged to Work Every Other Day a Chance as Well?

It is not probable that representatives whose constituents still cling to all that is left of the severe, unjoyful Puritan Sabbath will meet much condemnation if they vote for the bill permitting children to play baseball and some other innocent games of amusement on Sunday afternoon under certain restrictions.

As the years have rolled on they have softened that stern, harsh Sabbath conceived by those whose religious inclination was to frown on all forms of pleasure and who, Macaulay says, "Forbade bear baiting, not because it was cruel to the bear, but because it gave pleasure to the spectators."

We already suffer the well-to-do to enjoy all the pleasure on Sunday which they would care to enjoy if that day were as open as a secular day. Why, then, should we limit the pleasure of children and of those young people whose lot compels them to work through most of the daylight hours of every day in the week, save Sunday?

What idea of true morals requires this limitation upon the pleasure and the healthful exercise of those to whom Sunday is the only day when they are free from the dull monotony of their daily labor?

The bill offered by Senator Tinkham does not force this liberalizing of Sunday upon all the towns and municipalities. It merely gives the cities and towns the right to permit these pleasures to be enjoyed.

If any town is not yet ready to throw open the green fields and let in the sunlight through the sky as its limitless window, to the boys and girls of the stores and factories, it may still keep these great glories of nature carefully canned for a future generation.

Let us not be afraid of the stern old Puritan and his blue laws. He has left us his steady virtues and we are leaving his harsh customs. He was beginning to soften even when we were colonies, otherwise he would have edited out of Jefferson's Declaration of Independence the statement that one of our unalienable rights is "the pursuit of happiness."

Oh, blest with temper whose unclouded ray
Can make tomorrow cheerful as today!

POPE.

Little Bobbie

He Writes About The Auto Show

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

Pa took Ma & me to the ottomobeel show last nite, he sed that he knew everybody there & he wanted Ma to go with him & meet him.

Ma todd Pa that she dident see any reason why she shud go to a ottomobeel show. We are lucky to git by at all, sed Ma, I dount see why you want to maik me miserabel by asking me to go & look at a lot of ottomobeels that I can never buy no matter how long I live.

Jest a minnit, sed Pa, I know what I am doing & I want you to let me play my own system. I am going to fix it so that you & me & littel Bobbie can have a nice long ride tonite, & all for nothing. Keep off, now, sed Pa, & dount worry me.

I cud see all the time that Ma dident want to go to the ottomobeel show, but also that it was better, I guess, to be neer Pa than to be at home & be far away from him, so we all went.

All the way there in the trolley Pa was telling us how he had it fixed up for us to get a nice long ride. I will go about it this way, sed Pa. I will walk rite up to one of them big salesmen & I will say to him, "Well, I wish to purchase a car."

He wont believe you, sed Ma. Why don't sed Pa. Look at this swell young fur overcoat that I am wearing. Doesn't it maik me look like yellow bills? Pa sed.

Oh, I dount know, sed Ma, you must bear in mind that there is a lot of actors out of a job that has nice fur overcoats. I dount like the idee of it all, sed Ma, let us all go to the theater instead. There we can see a nice show & it will please littel Bobbie more than a joy ride on a winter nite.

But Pa is Scotch, & wen he maiks up his mind that he is going for to see a thing or do a thing, he is going to do it. So we went to the ottomobeel show, as I started out for to say at the beginning of this artikel.

The first man that Pa took Ma & me ourer to see was a fat man that was the salesman for one of the finest cars in Mechanics building. Pa shook hands with him & sed, This is my wife & my littel child. Well, well, sed the fat man, you have quite a family. The fat man never looked at me, he was looking at Ma all the time.

You see, sed Pa to the fat man, I am thinking of buying one of yure cars. The only thing I am in doubt about, Pa sed, is how the car will stand up in Wintry weather. I was thinking you mite talk us out for a whirl.

I wud with pleshur, sed the fat man, only I have no time. I will be glad to see you here any time. Come ogpunn & bring yure family.

That is some fellow, sed Pa, some class. I dident like him very much, sed Ma, he kept looking at me all the time kind of fresh. Lets go hoam.

No sed Pa. Pa went ourer to a other salesman & sed there is my card, I am desirous of purchasing a car. Fine, sed the man, I have been standing here for two days & I am desirous of seeing sum good money. Pay me a thousand down & the car is yures beefour I even look you up in Duns.

Then Ma started for to laff. You dount need to look my husband up in Duns, she sed to the man, he gits duns enuff. Cum litle of my life, sed Ma, let us ride hoam in Mister Bancroft's ottomobeel.

So we dident git a ride hoam at all, except in the trolley.
